Tarot cards

«Les métamorphoses du jour » Tarot has original artwork based on drawings by French artist, J. J. Grandville. The droll, comical, detailed cards are based on the Rider-Waite pattern and feature fantastical human-like animals.

Today, there are several tarot decks based on the illustrations of this famous artist, but despite this, each compiler of these decks sees his own, different from the others in the characters of J.J. Grandville.

Jean Ignace Isidore Gérard generally known by the pseudonym of Jean-Jacques or J. J. Grandville, was a French caricaturist. The name "Grandville" was his grandparents' professional stage name. Grandville received his first instruction in drawing from his father, a painter of miniatures.

The work which first established his fame was Les Métamorphoses du jour (1828-29), a series of seventy scenes in which individuals with the bodies of men and faces of animals are made to play a human comedy. These drawings are remarkable for the extraordinary skill with which human characteristics are represented in animal facial features. Though the designs of Grandville are occasionally unnatural and absurd, they usually display keen analysis of character and marvellous inventive ingenuity, and his humour is always tempered and refined by delicacy of sentiment and a vein of sober thoughtfulness.

All characters in this deck are animals. But it is so surprising that in sheep, birds and crocodiles we recognize familiar people. Cards are unusually characteristic; they outline the types of human personalities, life stories, and scenarios of relationships. Each card is a sketch on a topic and only one card can give a detailed description of the situation, understand the motives of human behavior or make a forecast for the further development of the plot. Especially valuable in this deck are court cards. The nature of the characters is reflected somewhat hypertrophied, but leaves no doubt for interpretation.

Looking at the character, when meeting with the deck, the fortuneteller can consider the characteristic features of the upright and reversed position of the card in one picture. These tips will help you to consider in detail the situation of interest and make a reliable forecast.

The use of this deck is multifaceted. With its help, you can look at the situation as if from the outside and see it without embellishment. Cards perfectly show professional preferences and talents of a person, describe inclinations and quirks. Cards can help to understand the psychological intricacies of the human soul and answer the question - Who am I.

A tarot deck consists of 78 cards divided in two groups. 56 from Minor Arcana (they are similar to today's playing cards with one additional) and the rest 22 are called Major Arcana. Cards from Major Arcana have a deeper meaning compared to the rest of the cards - they have the potential predict one's entire life path!

Also known as the trumps, from their historical origin, the Major Arcana are considered the most important group of cards in the tarot. To some, they represent universal archetypes. To others, they represent the spiritual quest of enlightenment.

They are magickal and special and yet they also represent our everyday lives and experiences. There are many aspects to the Major Arcana and it would be wrong to classify them from just one perspective.

Like the rest of the tarot, the Major Arcana are multi-faceted and multi-talented and should be allowed to express themselves in many different ways, from predictive tarot reading, to psychological explorations. Tarot is a fine instrument with which you can look into yourselves, to explore your personality and character or to join the vast cosmic consciousness. The art of tarot is connected with high magic, which purpose is spiritual development and transformation.

The tarot cards will give you the information you seek and be ready for all sorts and kinds of future surprises, so you can make the right steps in the right direction. All you need to do is concentrate on your ability to separate feelings and emotions from the logical mind.

The hardest part about tarot reading is understanding the complexity of the relationships between the cards as there are countless interpretations, spreads and layouts. Our readings aim at giving you answers to your heart's dearest questions and even the subconscious ones floating around your mind.

The following tarot card meanings are a good base for you to build your own vocabulary from, or as a quick reference guide if you already have a good level of proficiency and knowledge.

This list is in no way exhaustive and We would encourage you to develop your own tarot card meanings, taken from inspirational sources and real life experiences.

0. The Fool

Symbolizes – faith, ideals, hope for bright future, right of choice, crazy recklessness, start of adventure, finding a path.

The card symbolizes great faith that life is beautiful and it's worth believing in it. Some might say The Fool is too naive, but this innocence and purity is supporting and bringing him joy.

The card is considered to mark the start of a spiritual adventure. Focus here is on faith and hope, but if they're unjustified, it may mean insecurity for the person asking the questions.

The Fool is the archetype of the eternal optimist. He is spontaneous and carefree. He is impulsively setting off into the unknown, and taking each adventure as it comes.

This is a brave and courageous act, for the Fool will surely change, and become much wiser, and aware as he undergoes many initiations.

He believes that anything can happen in life and there are many opportunities that are lying out there, in the world, waiting to be explored and developed. He leads a simple life, having no worries, and does not seem troubled by the fact that he cannot tell what he will encounter ahead.

He inspires courage, for he understands that every day is a chance to open up new areas in your life, and with that comes a mixture of anticipation, wonder, awe and curiosity.

Without realizing the existence of obstacles, you step forward into the future with great optimism. The Fool aspires for a more spiritual lifestyle, to open our consciousness, not to put barriers or walls around ourselves and allow change to conquer us.

To meet him in a reading can also be seen as a call to the risk-taking part of your own character. The Fool is there to show that you can never really tell what lies ahead, and you can only greet it.

The Fool marks a new beginning, a fresh start. You are surrounded by opportunities and potential, everything is open to you. Pay attention to your intuition. Do not overlook your inner senses, however stupid and irrational your plans are, you should follow the strength this card carries.

The Fool represents children and teenagers or anyone starting a new journey.

The Fool in love doesn't normally want to be tied down. He is a free spirit. If you get the Fool when asking about a new potential partner, the Fool is telling you that your love interest probably doesn't want to be in a relationship.

If you are already in a relationship, the Fool is asking you to let go and just be happy in the moment. Live each moment with your partner as if it will be the last. Let go of whatever opinion you think someone else has about your relationship.

The Fool in Career -New beginnings! New business opportunities. New job proposals. Could truly indicate a move into a new business or job venture. The fool indicates jobs as an adventurer, explorer, travel writer, farmer, mountain climber, skydiver, computer programmer or developer, or creative thinker. Look for jobs that require you to think out-side-the-box. When it comes to finances, the Fool can be reckless. Sometimes he wins and sometimes he loses. It's not the best card to get if you are asking if you are going to do well in the stock market.

The Fool understands that once his basic needs are met financially, that he can focus on his spirit. He realizes that money does not buy happiness.

In order to succeed, you must find new ways to bring about the achievement of your goals. When the opportunity comes, you must be willing to shed old habits and if it never comes, it may be time to create it for yourself with new methods.

The Fool Reversed:

When you land on the reversed Fool in your reading, you can generally find his more negative characteristics being on display. It can mean that you are literally acting like a fool by disregarding the repercussions of your actions. A reversed Fool card can show that you are living in the moment and not planning for the future. The reversed Fool meaning serves as caution that you should be more aware so as not to be taken advantage of.

When the Fool card is reversed, you are encountering an unfinished side of yourself, a part still caught in the shadows of ignorance or immaturity. An emotional reflex or psychological attitude could be holding you back from responding authentically and naturally.

Release yourself from any dogmas or taboos so your natural truthfulness and instinct for right action can be restored.

Reversed Fool can indicate mental illness, folly, mania, bipolar disorder and schizophrenia. This card can also represent mental instability and foolish behavior. We have to guard against reckless behavior when the Fool comes up, especially when reversed or ill-dignified.

I. The Magician

Symbolizes – creative abilities, originality, self-reliance, confidence, mastery, skill, talent, awareness, attention, excitement, will and power to create.

The Magician tarot card represents the power of action and a person who at a certain stage fully commands the situation. The power is so great that, in the time and circumstances he or she's involved, this person is indeed the messenger of gods.

This card symbolizes skills, sleight of hand, sophistication, insight, conscious mind, skill, strong will and self-discipline needed to complete a task or to get extra qualification. Use your talents for noble purposes. Demonstration of abilities and originality win you respect and followers. You have the necessary confidence to take risks and navigate your life. These are the definitive points needed for one to achieve his/her goals.

Everything is at your disposal right now. You have the power to be or create anything you want from reality. The divine spark is inside of you and is ready for action. You have everything that you need to be successful. You have the capacity to complete projects that you start. New business contacts and new ideas may come into your life. Your willpower is strong right now as the divine elements guide you to develop your abilities. You will win. You will succeed. You are the epitome of success. You have the fire and now you can spread it.

Once you understand the basic principle of the Magician, you understand that everything that you think or actively visualize through concentration is yours. We are creators of our own universe. Skilled, experienced, self-confident. He uses the tools at his disposal and calls all his forces, takes advantage of the sky, the earth and all elements he has access to.

All possibilities and paths are unfolding before him, focusing on new endeavors and actions to fulfill deepest desires.

You're challenged to reach your personal power and use it. You have the opportunity and ability to manifest your desires. Your sense of personal strength is tremendous. Learn how to focus your will and passions on a particular purpose. Solutions come as you use your potential responsibly.

You should note that the Magician may also represent disloyalty and betrayal. The inquirer may be manipulated and exploited by someone. In a situation like that, you must follow your instincts.

The Magician can also symbolize meeting someone who is involved in the occult. He could be a great psychic or tarot card reader. He has the magic to start projects and connect you to the divine. He could be someone new that can help you develop your spirituality.

As a signifier, the Magician is usually a male. If it comes up for a female, the female has a very predominant masculine side. This archetype is a personification of divine or supernatural nature and is usually embodied in a human male. He is dedicated to deceive and to disobey the rules and norms either for fun or for his own benefit.

The Magician is usually a bachelor. They may not have ever been married or marry much later in life. A person who has the qualities of the Magician are dynamic, powerful and magnetic. There is a high possibility that this person is deeply involved in the occult. They really are a magician or a sorcerer. This type of work comes easily for them, as they have carried over subconscious knowledge from numerous past lives.

The Magician is the group leader who has the experience to lead people in the right direction. They are an astute individual who can see into the depths of others.

The Magician is the great miracle worker of the deck. He will not come to judge you as Justice will, nor will he teach you a great lesson about self-control like Strength. The Magician is also not interested in uncovering your lower instincts like The Devil. The wizard is here to show you the inner potential that you have yet to discover!

The Magician in love usually indicates that you will meet someone new. It could also represent a karmic connection to someone new.

If you are already in a relationship it could indicate that your relationship will find a mental spark that will elevate the relationship to a more spiritual and exciting level.

The Tarot card meaning for business is a very good one as it can indicate great success.

When the Magician has prominence in Tarot Readings it can indicate an opportunity to increase income. The opportunity needs to grasped and full effort put into it to make it pay off. The Tarot card meaning of the Magician in questions of finances can indicate taking action creatively to gain money.

The Magician Reversed:

The Reversed Magician indicates a trickster, a con artist or gambler. Be very careful when you see the Magician Reversed. This man feels empowered through his orator skills and misuses them. He uses rhetoric like hyperbole and once he's finished speaking you are spinning!

The Reversed Magician feels his "divine spark" comes from him and not from above, thus being all about the ego. He believes this about himself because he does not believe in God. He only believes in himself. Unlike the upright Magician, who is empowered by the supreme creator, the reversed Magician indicates an atheist or nihilist. In this instance, not believing in God can create an inflated ego because it's all about the self. Without faith people tend to live in the now and the ego or central self takes over. This person believes in only himself, the here, and the now. They look at short term strategies and not long-term goals. This person has a limited sense of gratitude.

Consider whether this reversed the magician is in your circle, or perhaps might also represent your current state of emotions. It may mean you may become obsessed with power and that might lead to wrong, reckless decisions that will lead to your eventual downfall.

II. The High Priestess

Symbolizes – expectation, inspiration, knowledge, psyche, receptivity, strong female influence, passivity, divine law, revelation, mystery, depth, purity, innocence.

The High Priestess tarot card is the guardian of subconsciousness. She is an archetypal moon goddess, virgin and pure. The card keeps secrets of spiritual enlightenment within. The High Priestess has the answers, if you only listen for them. The information that she has is beyond words. The High Priestess urges you to follow your intuition. You know better than others what's best for you. You can seek help or advice from others, but should not allow their needs to overshadow the longings of your heart. Form plans that are convenient for you, not for other people. Sometimes, The High Priestess represents a female individual (mother, wife, daughter, sister, girlfriend, boss, rival).

It can really help you to see what is ahead and real, not to be deceive by the appearance of something or someone. You know the answer and the right way to act. She represents our hidden talents and inner life. Making the impossible - possible.

This card shows a balanced and harmonious individual, a diplomatic personality. An authentic person who allows intellect to connect with subconscious. The High Priestess describes a search for knowledge. You act illogically, irrationally, sometimes just strangely but eventually with a great result.

It tells that you create an impression that everything you start is accomplished with great ease and skill. You are a person who is not in a hurry to make decisions, nor is in a hurry to act. You usually know what needs to be done and not very active, but always knows how to react to a situation.

In a direct meaning, The High Priestess depicts a person with secrets. In a higher sense - access to esoteric and spiritual knowledge. A person who usually quickly grasps the deeper meaning of what is happening. This card shows that we can manage our lives and make our way.

The High Priestess carries a sense of great inner strength. Huge inner excitement. Inspired state of the spirit. It brings beneficial influence on any creative, artistic, esoteric or scientific knowledge.

The High Priestess is a woman that can stand on her own two feet. She is bound by no man. She has her choice of men and will only be involved with one when she feels like it. She doesn't feel obligated to get involved with a man if she doesn't want to.

The High Priestess is all about feelings, for she governs all subconscious thoughts. Her feelings aren't moody or unresolved. She knows exactly how she feelings and probably how you feel too. There is a feeling of psychic connection, a feeling that you and the person probably spent a lifetime together. There is a feeling of aloneness and a feeling that you would rather be alone, but not lonely. She is never lonely.

The over all vibe of the High Priestess as a feeling, is of introspection and a time to really think about something deeply. It's time to go deeper.

The High Priestess advises you to keep to yourself. If you have secrets or someone has told you a secret, keep this to yourself.

As advice, the High Priestess also asks you to meditate for a while, pause and reflect. This is a period of germination.

You may want to spend some more time thinking about what you want to do next. This is not a time to make any sudden moves or changes. From a more person-to-person perspective, you may be interested in moving into the realm of the occult or becoming a professional tarot reader, psychic or medium. Patience is illustrated. You'll need to be patient and wait for the answers to come to you.

The High Priestess Reversed may cause your heart to break. The High Priestess Reversed may indicate that you are not listening to your intuition. You need time to reflect. The card represents a woman, which it normally does, she is a jealous woman whose intuitive abilities are used like swords to hurt you. She conceals and lies. She may have a drug or alcohol problem, sexual addictions and obsessions.

When drawn reversed the High Priestess warns against laziness, false intuitions and dangerous secrets. Hidden plans and bad intentions. A warning against a false ally or a stuck situation. The person must take action: being passive is a mistake.

III. The Empress

Symbolizes – high potency, material wealth, blessing, satisfaction, well-being.

Empress tarot card represents feminine power, a nurturer and a family oriented person, our mother or a mother figure, abundance, femininity, fertility and the love of the home and family. The Empress is very sensual and confident in her own skin. ... She loves luxury and beauty. The Empress owns the world. She is fertile and generous. The Empress tarot card represents all the abundance and blessing that can be obtained on physical level. She is genuineness and sensuality. She creates life and cares for it with love and devotion.

Focus is more on being rather than doing. Being in harmony with inner feelings and emotions. This tarot card also symbolizes development and creativity.

The Empress tarot card is also a good luck charm, implying potency, sexuality, and reproduction. Now is the time for manifestation of creative instincts and for taking decisive action. Any creative activity will yield good results.

You like your work because it gives your life beauty and sensuality, and gives you material comfort. Hard work will be rewarded financially.

She wants her children, friends or subjects to grow and prosper. She is prosperous herself. She is the embodiment of all the Queens. The Empress gives life, but she doesn't always have to give birth to children. She can give life to ideas, words, businesses.

But the Empress needs the structure of the Emperor. If left without an Emperor the Empress's garden can overflow and weeds will strangle the beautiful flowers. Flies and unruly insects will be drawn to the chaos. The Empress can also represent a woman who is highly sexual and sensual. She can also represent the bombshell or trophy wife. This might be the reversed or the obstacle of the Empress. Each card has a negative side to it. It is up to us how we can transform our obstacles into strengths.

She might love fashion and dressing up. Her wardrobe is full of lush fabrics, soft silks, and interesting jewelry. She loves makeup and may see it as an art form rather than a mask.

The Empress can indicate pregnancy, so if you don't want to become pregnant, be careful.

If you get the Empress when asking how your lover or potential lover feels about you, they definitely feel like taking care of you, nurturing you, and romancing you.

You may be feeling very warm and nurturing. You feel beautiful or you feel that someone is beautiful. You feel fertile, lush and warm. You may feel that now is the time to make your imaginative musing into reality, so you create them all and nurture them into manifestation.

If you are asking about how someone feels about you, then they feel that you are warm, open, loving and kind. They have kind feelings towards you and motherly feelings as well.

The Empress is the goddess of creation and the only way to create something is to envision it first.

Your business will grow and thrive if you are patient and thoughtful about it. This is a very good sign. Your business is most likely at the beginning stages of development. It needs time to grow before it is developed.

The Empress Reversed:

The Empress reversed again tells you to connect with your feminine qualities. This Major Arcana card indicates that you have been suppressing or ignoring your feminine side and that you need to embrace it in order to bring your masculine and feminine energies into balance again. The imbalance can take many forms. It might be that you have focussed too much on the material and mental matters of life, instead of the emotional and spiritual. Or that you've placed too much emphasis on the emotional or material needs of others. As a result, you neglected your own needs and you may have lost your own willpower and strength or feel empty inside.While the Empress' nature is to take care of others with love and care, this can sometimes go overboard. You have let maternal energy consume you and have become everyone's mother. This just isn't healthy for you and your relationships to grow. Therefore, the Empress reversed advises you to shift the focus and ground yourself to correct this imbalance. Don't sacrifice yourself so much and make self-love and self-care a priority. You also need to rest and receive love.

IV. The Emperor

Symbolizes – leadership, guidance, authority, self-control, government.

The Emperor tarot card represents descent of the soul into the material world. He is the master and ruler of all matter. His will is law. The Emperor establishes and impersonates rules and order, he's the first one to reveal a need for regulation and order in the eyes of the soul. He shows the necessity for a system and governing principles and guidelines. He reigns - teaching control in chaos.

The Emperor tarot card is the father archetype of the tarot deck and the number four of the Major Arcana cards. The card represents the highest leadership and symbolizes power, strength, and success. It often predicts that you will achieve a level of status.

If you get the Emperor in a reading, it could mean that you need to exert self-control and discipline in all matters.

You may even meet a very successful, older business man who can help you build a business. This card marks the start of reevaluation of moral values and ethical principles. If you were just following people around, it's time to stand up and bring back your self-respect. He is the messenger of a coming time filled with tremendous energy and activity, when you'll be engaged in doing something publicly and manifested - a family, building, business venture and/or works of art.

The Emperor symbolizes power, supremacy, stability, competence, authority, willpower, conviction, protection, material wealth, independence and determination to fight the injustices of the world. He suggests that the time has come for you to have new favorable opportunities, which will bring success. You have to act fast without procrastinating, consider all changes and adapt. Focus is on certain changes, which start to take form in the eyes of the beholder.

The Emperor says that with the help of your rational thinking and converting thoughts to action, you will be successful. You can receive a promotion, your organizational and leadership skills will be rewarded. He also sends a warning - you may need to oppose a rival or someone that is in the lead.

When you get the Emperor in a reading it can mean that you will come across an older man of authority. This could be a father figure or a man of authority, such as a police officer or general in the military. This man will help you in the areas of your life that need structure, discipline, and stability. You will learn a lot from this person.

The Emperor rules the element of fire. He is the action and spark that can ignite an idea. He is the business owner who never loses his resolve. He speaks directly to all the Kings.

In a relationship the Emperor usually needs to be the boss of the situation. He will want to take control and you may even have to be subjugated to him. He has very male oriented principles such as the female being submissive to the male. He always thinks he knows what he's doing even when he doesn't. He usually doesn't let people into his emotional side and when he doesn't get his way in love, he can be extremely aggressive. He may send flowers, follower her on face book, or find different ways to infiltrate her life.

He's the type that will call his wife five times a day when she's way on a trip. He believes this is a devotion of love, but in reality, it's a controlling aspect of being in an Emperor relationship.

You may meet an older man who is very helpful to you. It is possible to grow to love this man. He may remind you of your father. The Emperor doesn't speak of undying love or passion. He usually wants an Empress type of female. Someone who dresses up or is feminine in another aspect. Maybe she loves to have a garden and cook, since he loves to eat and loves to walk among her garden. He needs a very feminine woman in his life because of his extreme masculine energy.

In a relationship the Emperor usually needs to be the boss of the situation. He will want to take control and you may even have to be subjugated to him. He has very male oriented principles such as the female being submissive to the male. He always thinks he knows what he's doing even when he doesn't. He usually doesn't let people into his emotional side and when he doesn't get his way in love, he can be extremely aggressive.

If you're already in a relationship, the Emperor is a good sign as he stands for monogamy and long-lasting relationships. It tells you that your partner is with you for the long run and your relationship will be stable.

The Emperor, as the father figure of the tarot deck, can also imply that you're adopting this fatherly role. Perhaps you are taking care of your family, and guarding your loved ones. You're providing stability and security.

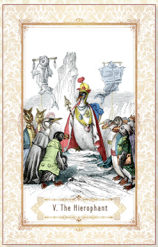

The Emperor Reversed:

When the Emperor is reversed in a tarot reading, it means a negative presence in your personal or professional life. This person abuses his authoritative powers over you to domineer you. Think of a stubborn figure, such as your father or your boss or an overpowering partner that just doesn't let you be. The primary objective of this person is to obtain and maintain control in every situation. You can feel powerless or helpless in your present situation, and you find it hard to come up with a solution.

The Emperor tarot card in a reversed position can also indicate a lack of discipline to get the job done. If you are struggling to see any real outcomes: get organized, create a feasible plan and work hard. You have to realize that it takes time to achieve results and dominate.

V. The Hierophant

Symbolizes – kindness, compassion, inner strength, teaching, sacredness, reverence, tradition, science and knowledge.

The Hierophant tarot card represents rules, structure, procedure, ritual and unity, including marriage. He brings harmony in the community so it can identify and develop as a whole.

The Hierophant strives to create balance and peace in crisis situations through rituals, ceremonies and tradition, which remind the people of their values, their shared identity and structure, that brings order and meaning to life.

In times of chaos and fear this is great reassurance.

The card can represent an organization, institution, company or any other kind of establishment, which is arranged in a certain way and is not open to change.

He stands for group order and society. He can represent any group in society that feeds people social order. This kind of order is needed in order for society to function.He is all about doing the "right thing." The right thing is the thing that is the most common. This will feel natural for many people because it's a program that has been given to the majority of people through mass media, religious institutes and parents and teachers.

The Hierophant says that it's time for education. Learning always goes in both directions - even if you're the teacher you have a lot to learn from those you each. If you're learning - be an active participant and compare the instructions to your own views and experience.

One of the messages The Hierophant carries is to allow calmness and peace to surround us in order to hear our inner voice. Love for nature and the innate order of things is also represented by this card.

The Hierophant tells us to do what is told of you. The Hierophant is one the marriage cards, especially the card of arranged marriage and marriages of conveniences. If you get this card in regard to marriage for individuals who marry not because of true love, but because the individual feels pressure from the group to marry. You may feel under pressure to marry because "everyone else is doing it." It's the card of conventional marriage.

The Hierophant can sometimes relate a marriage or relationship where one partner is significantly older than the other person.

If you are inquiring into a future lover or want to know what your love interest feels for you, the Hierophant can sometimes lead to disappointment. It depends on the context of who you are asking about. If you are asking about a relationship that you know cannot work within the realm of societal standards, then the relationship will not flourish.

If you are asking about how your current partner feelings, know that they love you very deeply and it is a love that cannot be unbroken. It is one that is bound by all that is material and all that is nonphysical, for they are really one in the same.

If you're building up relationships, the advice of the Hierophant is to inform others about your background and family traditions.

In a career context, the Hierophant indicates that new things are coming your way. This can be in the form of a promotion, moving to another department, or changing companies. While working with a lot of new colleagues, one of them will act as a mentor. This person will guide you through the values and traditions of the company and provide you with inside information.

Reversed Hierophant:

When the Hierophant reversed shows up in a reading, it symbolizes nonconformity as well as openness and freedom.

It can also indicate that you are feeling the desire to bend existing rules. Or that you're experiencing limitations from too many structures and established beliefs.

As a result, you feel like you lost your own control and flexibility in a lot of aspects of your life. You want to explore past beyond what you already know and what has been taught to you for many years.

It makes you want to question things to ensure the truth and morality of your actions and beliefs. While there might be people who will not understand your will to do some changes, it might be needed.

The card suggests that you no longer need the approval of external sources and that you are your own teacher. Now is the time to trust your inner strength and see things from a different perspective.

Maybe you're going to have conflicts with authorities, experts or existing sources as you start to seek your own answers. That feels scary at first, but do not worry! You will feel comfortable as it is natural to feel scared to deviate from the norm and established ideas.

VI. The Lovers

Symbolizes - attraction, affection, beauty, romance, harmony and defeated difficulties.

The Lovers card is number six of the Major Arcana cards and mainly represents love, relationships, and major decisions regarding soulmate situations. Even if you're not looking for love advice, the Lovers can be a powerful card that helps you get clear about your own values and find harmony within yourself.

Focus is on love, relationships and change. The card also symbolizes transition of state - usually changing one social group for another. The Lovers show you that a new relationship will be more successful and with deeper meaning than past experiences. If you're already with a partner, the card shows that all problems will be conquered the old connection is still strong. It reminds you to keep going and have faith in order to succeed.

The Lovers can show up when you need to make an important and fateful decision. This can be a romantic adventure, accompanied by the need for a choice. Establishing of a sexual relationship. Love and marriage can totally obsess your mind. Maybe you're thinking only about keeping a relationship with certain someone. A test before the start of a new stage of development. A crossroad. Maybe a new relationship or partnership opportunity is about to introduce itself. Short outings or trips and intimate conversations.

The Lovers is about falling in love, sexual attraction, and taking a relationship to another level. There could be a tremendous amount of sexual attraction or a declaration of feelings, but first the right choice must be made. The right choice is the soul mate. It is a much better choice. You are not just enamored with her/him, it is a destined love and match made in heaven if only you could free yourself from the situation you are in currently. Make the right decision. You will make the right decision.

If you are asking about how he or she feelings about you, then the Lovers is one of the best cards to get. They are definitely thinking of you in a romantic way and feel deeply and intensely connected to you.

Lovers can be about any unions. If you are asking about a business decisions, the Lovers suggests contracts, unions and working together.

Besides romance and love, the Lovers card in a health context also represents the growth of your own subjective principles and beliefs, irrespective of what society dictates as norms. It's about getting clear about your own values and finding harmony within yourself.

The Lovers Reversed:

Where the upright Lovers card indicates love and harmony, the Lovers reversed stands for breakups, conflicts, missed connections, power struggles, and personal fears about commitment.

If you're in a relationship, the card can indicate that you're not on the same page anymore. The relationship started with you both feeling deeply connected on many levels but you don't feel as close as you used to.

The Lovers card reversed can indicate that you are dealing with internal or external conflicts.

The reversed Lovers card can also specify that you have been escaping accountability for your own actions. You may have made a choice that was based on your wish for instant fulfillment but are now blaming others for the consequences that are happening to you.

The card advises you to be accountable, learn from your mistakes and let go. Focus on your personal belief systems and values, and develop a deeper understanding of your true self. This will help you to make better choices and avoid making the same mistakes in the future.

VII. The Chariot

Symbolizes – ambition, power, balance, conquest, victory, energy, curiosity, movement, optimism, journey, distant traveling. Change of known environment, concentration of intention an will, establishment of identity, resisting temptation. Traveling, riding, literally a vehicle. News and opportunities.

The Chariot tarot card is very powerful. It represents progress and forward motion. It can help you set goals and achieve them. Communication at a distance. Unexpected good news. Promotes self-belief. Suggests moving and traveling.

This card is a lot about controlling a situation through your mind. Once you have control over your mind, you can have control over your emotions more easily.

When the upright Chariot tarot card shows up in a tarot reading, it tells you that now is the time to get what you want. Consider this card as a sign of encouragement.

The Chariot is for the battles we fight within ourselves and with life. It promises that, with hard work, effort, courage and persistence, we can overcome even the most overwhelming obstacles. It reminds us that as long as we want to, we can climb up the heights we crave. We learn to balance opposing forces within in order for harmony to triumph. It's the inner struggle of conflicting sides of our individuality.

The Chariot isn't really a positive card for a love reading, even when paired with the Lovers or cups cards since it can represent control issues or being pressured into conforming in relationships. It also represents silly arguments, competition, as well as jealousy between partners. If this is something that is happening in your relationships currently, you'll need to take a stand. If there is a way to communicate and overcome your issues, you should do so.

However, you should never allow yourself to be walked over or mistreated while bending someone else's will.

If you're single or trying to heal from a hurt relationship, the Chariot often stands for the type of self-care and love that should rule our lives. Are there fears or negative belief systems that are causing you to be disconnected from the love that you desire and deserve. By figuring out what these roadblocks are, you'll be able to move forward on a path that leads to all your desires being fulfilled, including those of a romantic nature.

The Chariot is not a great indicator for a new relationship. The person could be very focused on you, but not for the right reasons.

If you are already in a relationship, it may not be going the way you want because your partner is focused on work or is traveling constantly.

The Chariot is a good career card. You are focused and driven to succeed. Could indicate a career in the military, especially if combined with the Emperor. Any career where you are reconciling differences or working on your own are also good.

The Chariot Reversed:

The reversed Chariot card can indicate failure, defeat, and a lack of control. When this card appears in your reading, it can be a sign that you lost your determination and willingness. Often indicates that you lose control of a situation. For the very, very literal interpretation, it can indicate a car accident or misfortune with your car.

A person who is signaled by the reversed Chariot could be misguided and misdirected. They may have wishy-washy feelings and cannot make a firm commitment or decision. They end up collecting people and things because of their insecurities. These things become their protective shell to the real person inside of them. They deny their personality, so the things and people they collect become a representation of who they are.

The love interest will be extremely possessive of their beau to the point of controlling their every move, who they can be friends with and what they can do with their money. They see nothing else but either money in the love interest or beauty.

VIII. Strength

Symbolizes – triumph of higher nature, power of spirit, endurance, innocence, openness, fearlessness, unwavering conviction, peace, presence of spirit.

The tarot card Strength represents pure love, sexual energy under control. It rules with great delicacy, giving an opportunity to for the energy to develop constructively.

Strength is proving yourself by way of enhancing your own sense of dignity and self-respect.

Self-confidence, fortitude, active action and standing up for one's rights are all good signs to harness and use our own strength and courage. Manifestation of weakness, losing nerves and inertia are all signs that we must find that courage.

The focus is not just on physical strength, but also bravery, determination and bravery - expressed both within us and before others. The card is usually associated with showing strong rationality and discipline against our harsh and wild animal nature.

Not suppressing or restraining our passions, but rather their mastering in our everyday life Strength can also represent spiritual power that over comes material temptations.

So this card calls on you to use your inner strength to get the job done. You may have to work at it over and over and over again, but you'll eventually be able to tame any problem through love and gentle care.

Strength in love requires you to be gentle, kind and patient with your partner or lover. It is very likely that one of you is the temperamental lion and the other is the mediator. You may bring a sense of calm to your relationship that your partner needs. One of you has a fiery temper.

Sexually passionate and intimate relationships are very important to you. You want to make love and be loved. Fire in a romance are important and you may even believe that fighting might bring you closer. Strength in love will enjoy make up sex immensely.

You are probably feeling in control and diplomatic. You are feeling very regal and beautiful. In a romantic context, you are feeling a lot of love for someone or something, but for some reason you have to keep the love and the feelings restrained. You may even be feeling very sexual about a certain someone.

This card is a message, that challenges are coming. You must be true and balanced. Also, loving yourself is the most powerful thing in a moment of test. Strength without love is unscrupulous arrogance, brutality. Love without strength is purposeless sentimentality. Strength is the confidence that you can overcome whatever fate throws at you. When you can be true and concentrate at will, you posses real power.

Strength Reversed:

Strength can indicate lust, raw sexual energy, passion and sexual slavery. Strength reversed can hint at a one-night stand.

Upright, Strength is a card of how to balance power, but when reversed the card can indicate someone or a situation, which is overbearing. This can lead to others being intimidated by the person. A bully can even be indicated.

The reversed Strength card can also be a sign that you are lacking the inner strength that this card usually embodies. It might be that everyone seems to be blissful or topping in each area of their lives, while you feel like you are stuck in a rut.

Stop comparing yourself to others and focus on your own journey. Learn to get back on your feet, and just remember that you have the inner power and strength to overcome any obstacle. Try to reconnect with this power and get back that conviction you once had. You can always seek a professional to help you with this.

Furthermore, the reversed Strength card is an indication that you may have forgotten all that spark of joy, happiness, and fulfillment that you felt when you were doing things with passion and love. As a result, the positive vibes and happiness in your life are fading away. Feeling this way could greatly affect your overall health and daily activities. Therefore this card encourages you to rest for some time, take care of yourself and regain energy.

IX. Hermit

Symbolizes – foresight, knowledge, insight, faith, intuition, enlightenment, maturity, guidance, advice, patience, observance, perspective, analysis, thoughtfulness, peace, self-awareness, introspection, seclusion, willpower, creative and rational mind, ideas, spirit, moral.

The Hermit tarot card represents an individual who not hiding from people but rather lives by his own rules. He prefers to be secluded - needs peace and quiet. He doesn't use this solitude as a break, but rather he needs the space to be productive. The wise man enjoys everything.

He walks through the woods every day, quietly practicing mindfulness, enjoying everything he comes into contact with. He is introspective, keen, and logical. He wants to analyze everything around him as it gives light.

When you get the Hermit in a reading, you may want to spend some time alone. This is not a time of loneliness, but of a time where being alone is necessary.

The Hermit represents someone who is analytical and insightful. They need time alone to ponder. Could indicate a physicist or astrologer contemplating a new theory.

He can also represent a person who is a little strange, a person who always seems to be alone.

If you're in a situation of isolation, realize how you look at this solitude. Is this freedom or loneliness; is it seclusion or a celebration of your own strength and identity. Be the light in yourself. Each person should develop an ability to be independent, to make his or her way through the darkness without partners or friends. This card reminds us that all the answers are within and we need to retreat in meditation in order to rationalize and understand the situation.

The Hermit is an opportunity to spend some time by ourselves. Sometimes we need to relax and take a step back, pull back from daily noisy crowds in order to take a look at our own lives and pay attention to our needs. Perhaps you have given too much of yourself and feel the need to recharge. This card may suggest a vacation somewhere quiet, amid nature, somewhere beautiful - the beach, the mountain. It's important to spend some time by yourself.

The Hermit says that it's not the time for public activity and socializing, nor for action, nor discussion... on the contrary - you need tranquility and introspection. Peaceful and contemplative card. He stands alone. Thinking. Meditating. Organizing. Planning.

If you are already in a relationship, the Hermit signals that it isn't a good time for love. Your partner really wants time alone.

If you are inquiring about a love interest, the Hermit warns that he or she is extremely picky about who they choose to be with. They will want a lot of space and may even want to have separate rooms or live apart indefinitely.

Make sure that you are pouring just as much energy into yourself as you are your partner and family. Don't get so lost in your marriage that you neglect the relationship with yourself.

The Hermit Reversed:

When the Hermit is reversed, the card represents all of the problematic or negative sides of disconnecting from others.

You may be feeling self-pity and self-doubt. You need time to withdraw from society, friends, and family, which is not the best option, but it's how you feel presently. You are suffering with loneliness and isolation.

The Reversed Hermit Tarot card wants you to know that you shouldn't run from your problems or emotions. The only real warning is to avoid letting paranoia or fear guide your steps. As difficult as it might seem, accepting reality and embracing your feelings will help you move forward.

The Hermit reversed suffers from hypochondria. He or she may think that every little spot or mark is sign of death.

X. The Wheel of Fortune

Symbolizes – destiny, fortune, happiness, prosperity, divine interference, chance and coincidence, new beginning, career change, new relationship, travels. Also: delays, bad news, unexpected problems and changes patience.

If one card had to represent the tarot in general, the Wheel of Fortune would be it.

If the Wheel of Fortune arrives upright, you are in luck. Whether you believe in destiny or not, things are lining up for your benefit. Personal vision will increase as life's tempo cranks up. There is nothing to fear. Everything will work out according to divine intervention and timing.

The Wheel of Fortune tarot card usually represents situations and events outside the boundaries of human intervention and control, but also synchronicity.

Those are the events that surprise us from nowhere. Something that's repeating, echoing. It shows the hope within. It is a message to let things go in their natural order, without interfering. To expect the unexpected.

Focus is on potential success, following the changes in your life. When the Wheel of Fortune is present, it shows you the importance of letting things flow in their own direction. A good advice is to have several plans as as changes might be knocking on your door. The card tells you that the key to success is adaptiveness, changes will be positive, a new beginning will be born from chaos.

The Wheel of Fortune is bonded with the hand of Fate, or put simply - luck in your life. Good luck, however, is not a constant... the Wheel is spinning, what has been up is now down and vice versa. The card shows us that power is transient, temporary and if we don't feel in place, we just need to show patience and wait for the right circumstances. But if we are on top, in the lead, we need to carefully plan ahead, because change is inevitable.

This is no ordinary person. He or she has a larger than life outlook. They have a great sense of humor. You can catch them making jokes and laughing all the time. They may love history, current events and culture. They love and investigate other cultures.

They may love fashion and dressing in many different outfits. They love beauty and refinement. This is the type of person who is a true chameleon. They can blend in with anyone. Acting would be a good profession for someone whose signifier falls under the Wheel of Fortune. They understand all humanity and all that comes with it. A forgiving soul for sure.

They understand karmic laws and are extremely self-reflective because of this. They were born with a divine sense of cosmic self.

They are lucky when they gamble or invest. The wealthier may make speculative purchases such as real estate, commodities, and the stock market. They have an intuitive sense of what to buy combined with their love of reading and investigating.

If you are happy in your partnership and want it to continue, the Wheel of Fortune in love and relationships suggests that a positive event will draw you two even closer. You may even take trips together because you love culture and adventure. A very whirlwind romance as everything moves in perfect harmony with each other. It's the right time for this. Perfect timing.

If you are single, you will soon meet your soulmate - by chance.

In a Money and Career reading, the Wheel of Fortune foretells that a significant change is coming.

The Wheel Of Fortune Reversed:

The Reversed Wheel of Fortune represents the anxiety and distress one feels when things don't go the way we planned. If the Wheel is flipped upside down in a reading, it can represent an earthquake of sorts. Change is still coming, but it won't be the positive kind for which you had hoped.

Prepare for challenges to spring up or things to suddenly fall apart. These difficulties won't be of your own doing but will seem to be controlled by external factors.

A relationship may end out of the blue, a vehicle may break down with no warning, or a job may suddenly stop unexpectedly.

This is the challenge presented by the Wheel of Fortune. Moving on will help you get back to your course and lead you to a much pleasant road again.

XI. Justice

Symbolizes – balanced view, judgment and conclusion. Law, cause-effect, responsibility.

In the upright position, the Justice tarot card represents cause and effect as well as balanced thought and action. Everything you say or do has ramifications, whether they are small actions or large ones. Justice reverberates karmic principles.

The Justice tarot card brings in a sense of balance. Anything that is symmetrical is important.

If you are asking about a legal question then upright Justice is a good omen, while reversed Justice indicates an unfair trial.

Life can show us how prepared we are to deal with a situation. It precisely reflects our level of readiness for anything by putting us in certain situations - it doesn't give us what we want, it gives us what we need. And that is reality.

As a person, Justice likes to come at a situation from all angles. They weigh all the pros and the cons. They most likely make lists and finish them. They will even do this within a relationship. They are not a person to quickly jump into a relationship, but when they do they will give their heart totally. They are always looking for someone who truly complements them.

Some may write long love letters taking the time to reply to e-mails in detail.

Education is important to them. They may even have several degrees or certificates in their chosen field. It's not so important to them the degrees or certificates, but what and how they utilize that information.

Justice people are romantic. They love balance in a relationship and like to weigh and divide everything up, which isn't a bad thing if both people are business minded.

Friendship in marriage is very important to Justice in love. They are very discriminating in who they partner with. Justice in love has a tendency to start out as friends first and lovers later. This is because they need their mind nurtured above all else.

Love in a relationship context is never a one-way street, it has to be reciprocated. If you or your love is not being reciprocated and Justice comes up, it might be time to move on.

Beware when Justice does show up in a love reading because it is often a sign of some kind of karmic ramification.

It can mean new business leads or new opportunities to make money. It can also indicate charity work or an act of compassion.

As far as warnings, Justice sends out a clear message: do not partake in any corrupt or deceitful practices. Although quick money schemes can be tempting, they always come with karmic baggage. It's best to steer clear.

Reversed Justice:

Reversed Justice can be about being in a legal situation where the guilty get away with a crime or where someone who is innocent is being prosecuted as guilty. Justice is also about balance, so Justice reversed is about imbalance.

Remember, the only person you can control is you. Resist the urge to fight back or seek vengeance. Take responsibility for your own actions and decisions. Karmic Justice will take care of the rest.

The reversed Justice card can also indicate an unethical deed or action where you didn't take your responsibility for.

XII. The Hanged Man

Symbolizes - retreat, acceptance, reversal, sacrifice, delay, retention. Balance, patience, understanding, flexibility, exemption. Absurdity.

The Hanged Man tarot card is best described as a paradox - full of contradictions. It teaches power, control and ability by means of withdrawal and discontinuation; strength through humility; acquiring as a result of sacrifice.

The Hanged Man shows us a time when we can't help ourselves through an independent action, a time when we are in a pending and unresolved situation and we can not control events and situations. A need for introspection, analysis, and reflection in order to see and understand the problem, to realize what we can draw from it.

The Hanged Man stands for letting go, meditation, bliss, patience, unyielding.

The Upright Hanged Man wants you to know that sometimes, we have to accept a loss for the greater good. Acceptance and letting go are key if you ever want to move forward.

The Hanged Man can also be about sacrificing a belief or something else to gain insight into a situation. On rare instances, the Hanged Man can indicate a martyr someone who sacrifices his life for the greater good.

On a more banal level, this could be a person who gives to charity, while forfeiting their yearly vacation.

If the Tarot Hanged Man card refers to a person, which it often is, it is someone who is willing to make the sacrifice needed for things to find their solution - even if that sacrifice is completely unrewarded. It is an attitude worth admiring, but people tend to do so only secretly, keeping it to themselves. That may be out of guilt, knowing they should have volunteered to make that sacrifice.

When connected to love and relationships of any kind, the Hanged Man symbolizes unhappiness and being in a rut. It is time to rid yourself of any toxic connections and only focus on the ones that give you peace and joy. If you are hesitant to bring an end to a romantic relationship or friendship, there is no need to rush. You do, however, need to do some soul-searching.

If you are searching for love, it may not be the best time to get involved in a relationship. You'll have to wait. There will be a delay getting the one you love. Your love interest also runs the risk of being too in love with love, so that they would rather have you as a fantasy than you as the real person.

It is not the time for activity except meditation and prayer. Learn to be calm and quiet. The Hanged Man can indicate a time when there is nothing to do, a state of oblivion. The situation for now is unlikely to change, but it is an opportunity for you to change yourself. To truly see, you need to get rid of your preconceptions and expectations. Relax to and realize what you have missed. It takes faith and patience, but remember that your spirit is always supportive. This is the card of the one who voluntarily steps back and closes his eyes in order to see better.

The card hints that you either started or you have to change your attitude and actions so that you can take full advantage of the world around you.

Because it is a card of patience, the Hanged Man often appears in money and career readings when things aren't really going as planned. Sometimes, this means a promotion isn't available or given as hoped. It can also represent the slow and stagnated growth of a business one hoped would take off. If things take longer than expected to turn a profit or your financial stability seems to be on shaky ground, hold fast. Things will improve eventually if you continue to give consistent effort. You will want to avoid borrowing money, making promises, or going deeper with investments, though. Fear can often drive us toward rash decisions that only make a bad situation worse.

The Hanged Man Reversed:

There is a big tendency to martyr yourself and play the victim when the Hanged Man comes up Reversed. You maybe sulking, disenchanted and grieving some imaginary, overly dramatic loss. You might be so caught up in the production and illusion that you cannot see clearly. You may be suffering from delusions.

In order for our current situation to improve, effort is required. Inner reflection is needed to recognize the habitual toxic patterns of thought and feelings that hinder our spiritual growth. The hanged man reversed is directing us to do further introspection to our own behaviors.

XIII. Death

Symbolizes – revival, refresh, transformation, conclusion.

Death is part of life. We're born, so we will die one day. Although it's the very first rule of existence, it's the most difficult one to come to terms with. That's why we tend to be shocked when death appears - in our lives, or as a card in a Tarot reading. It's as if we pretend it can be escaped by being ignored. But the only way of learning to live with it is to accept it.

That said, the Tarot Death card is not always about physical death, although that can be the case. It can also indicate a drastic change including a costly loss, a painful farewell, and things of that kind. It's sure to be difficult and the change is lasting. The situation after this event is quite different and will not be reversible. So, it's always a death of sorts.

Death can indicate something that is suppose to happen. You have no control over it happening. It will come regardless of any action that you take to prevent it. It can indicate the death of a friendship, a job, or a marriage.

The Death card can be very spiritual. It maybe telling you that it's time to evolve to a higher level spiritually. In order to do this, you'll need to leave behind an old attitude or believe.

If the Tarot Death card refers to a person, which is quite rare, it is either someone marked by death or something similarly sinister, or it is a person bringing it. Such a person is an acquaintance that can be very costly to you, even dangerous. Be wary.

When Death comes up in a love reading, it does not seem likely that you and your romantic partner will continue. Death is a definite, "No, it won't work out."

Death and love in tarot readings spell trouble, especially if you're wondering if you should stay or go. But the Death card doesn't have to represent a current relationship. In fact, it can also suggest a need to let go of a past love or hurt that is affecting the future. This is especially true of single people who are wanting to start dating again.

If your relationship is toxic or you and your partner aren't compatible, it might be time to accept this and move on.

On the flip side, if you truly believe you have found your soulmate, you must both bury your past and embrace a new beginning not tainted by yesterday's troubles.

If you are unhappy at work, in your current field, or with your financial situation, you don't have to 'take things lying down.' This may mean leaving your job, filing for bankruptcy or focusing on credit repair, or selling a home.

You have control over your life and the way you react to every obstacle that comes your way. The Death Tarot card urges you to eliminate what isn't necessary, do what you can, and embrace what can't be avoided. It seems like it is time for an ending and a rebirth in every area of your life.

Death Reversed:

When Death reverses we see the outcome of what happens when we refuse to accept change, or the refusal to move on when change has taken place. It is a sign that all faith in life has been lost. Death Reversed suggests that you may be continuing to grieve and mourn for a past that will not come back. You may get stuck in the past, or prefer to live in the past, which brings stagnation and a limited approach to life and the sheer experience of living. Change in all forms is feared and avoided. You might be stuck in your ways with narrow beliefs and attitudes colouring your thoughts and approach to life. You may fear anything or anybody who operates outside your belief system. Death Reversed can turn you negative and depressing to be around as you seek to instill the same fear in others.

When Death comes up reversed it still indicates that something is over, but you maybe trying to sustain a false illusion that it is alive and well. You are resisting Death with every fiber of your body. Death Reversed indicates that there is a delay in something ending.

XIV. Temperance

Symbolizes – adaptation, balance, restraint, equanimity, harmony, coordination, ability, dexterity.

The image of the Temperance Tarot card is one of stillness. The simple explanation of Temperance is moderation, but there's nothing simple about it. This quality is regarded as the finest of all in just about every philosophy and religion of the world, all through time. Living modestly, with patience and contemplation, brings life into balance.

Temperance shows a need for modest life and time for careful management of matters. You may be stepping into a time of restoration, both spiritual and physical. It is necessary for you to allow full completion of the healing process.

You maybe in a situation that needs constant bits of work and adjustments to make it just right.

You will need to take things in moderation and not go to the extremes.

If the Tarot Temperance card refers to a person, it's someone with the quality of temperance - the ability to patiently await the solution and never try to rush it. You may get impatient, even frustrated, but trust his or her tempo and try to slow down to it.

Temperance represents harmony, meaning a peaceful and beneficial relationship is on the horizon. If you're single, prepare to meet someone who is the perfect piece to your puzzle. If you are already committed, your partnership is getting ready to hit a new wavelength.

Temperance tells you that you will heal after a breakup. She may come back to give you closure. Temperance is about healing. Especially talking it through with someone. Temperance people love to ask questions and fix problems. Temperance almost never indicates a reconciliation between two people after a breakup.

Temperance Reversed:

Reversed Temperance suggests imbalances, as upright Temperance indicates combining opposites so that a balance can occur. There is a lack of harmony and even clocks may seem to act erratically. Timing is off and you may find yourself late for an appointment or date.

Imbalances can also occur to your body in your endocrine system or liver. Your body seeks to rid its self of disruptive hormones from birth control or the misuse of drugs, whether prescription or recreational.

Reversed temperance can indicate drug addiction and abuse. It can also indicate someone who is heavy-handed with justice. It indicates unfair trials and tribulation.

XV. The Devil

Symbolizes – dependency, addiction, materialism, despair, attraction, ignorance, violence, failure, misfortune, misery, death, and sinister or threatening events.

The Devil tarot card represents tendency for or addiction to harmful substances and people or seeking wealth at all costs; obsession without satisfaction, where we sacrifice everything for an insatiable need, including our self-control. This Card speaks of enslavement in a situation, whether a habit, another person, or a way of thinking that impedes us in our quest for happiness, freedom, higher understanding and peace of mind - we have lost our perspective and are adrift... we despair hopelessly. But it is also a delight - sensual and every other feeling we perceive with our physical body. It is the ability to enjoy life. Yet it is a warning not to become greedy, to look for the golden mean.

The Devil in tarot can represent a gambling addiction that is out-of-control. Someone who steals and lies for their next gambling venture. Someone with risky behaviors that includes risky business ventures that are more precarious than grounded.

The Devil in tarot can represent drugs addictions and drug dealers. It could represent someone who gets another person addicted to drugs so that they can control them.

It can represent obsessions, especially with materialism. You maybe obsessed with having all the new toys and gadgets. You are the person with the newest smart phone or fabulous luxury car. Your desire for more stuff is insatiable. If you live in the city, you also may like high views, such as a penthouse view over the city.

The Devil in tarot can represent any behavior that is uncontrollable. The Devil can even indicate someone who is hysterical or bipolar.

The Devil can sometimes suggest impotence in a man.

When the Tarot Devil card represents a person, it's somebody behaving in the above described devilish way - uninhibited and tempting. It's the kind of person you know you'd do best to stay far away from, but that's not easy.

The Devil also indicates sexual interests such as bondage, bisexuality, and fetishes. In its darkest form the Devil can represent sexual slavery.

When the Devil tarot card represents you or your partner in a love reading, the news isn't good. In love and relationship spreads, the Devil represents someone who is selfish, abusive, and unfaithful-so caught up in lusty desires that not much else matters.

Addiction and mental health issues may also be playing a part in the demise of the relationship. If this is the case, you'll both need to seek the right kind of help for your individual struggles.

The Devil also indicates sexual interests such as bondage, bisexuality, and fetishes. In its darkest form the Devil can represent sexual slavery.

The Devil Reversed:

The Reversed Devil can mean one of two things. You can realize that you don't want to be chained to a vice, a blood sucking corporate job or a draining relationship and release the cords.

The other side of the Reversed Devil emphasizes that the chains are chocking you, but you are unaware of it. The Reversed Devil suggests a very immature soul, who will hurt anyone to get to the top. This person could very well be a psychopath and a sociopath.

Due to the nature of universal laws, this person will finally see their retribution play out, most likely in the final stages of their life. This kind of person usually works very hard for money and power, who winds up later in life, homeless, poor, ugly and miserable.

In a relationship, The Devil Card Reversed can represent a divorce. Divorce in this case would not be associated with typical scenario of marital breakdown. When Divorce is as a result of The Devil Reversed it usually refers to eventual escape or release from a controlling abusive relationship and just a love that has fizzled out.

There may well have been violent, intimidating and abusive partner. Generally, this divorce or end of a relationship would not have been an easy process. There may have been fear involved and the person involved may have needed help or assistance to face up to the offending partner.

XVI. The Tower

Symbolizes – eruption, outburst, attack, shifting of layers, cataclysm, sudden change, transformation, twist, exposing, shock, surprise.

The Tower is the biggest sign of total destruction. Usually this is unexpected destruction of existing structures.

The tower usually means that something in your life will suddenly change. Things will be destructive. There will be an overhaul of everything you knew. Whatever it is, it won't be pleasant, but will be necessary. Jobs could suddenly be lost or stocks could plummet. You could even find your lover in bed with another person. There is a force in nature that shakes things up from time to time, and the tower signifies this. But these things must tumble if you are to rebuild. Previous belief systems and existing structures must fall.

Major changes, metamorphoses, reorganization of environment or a certain situation, and although we most probably think that it happens against our will, we have arrived here by ourselves.

The Tower is the biggest sign of total destruction. Usually this is unexpected destruction of existing structures.

The tower usually means that something in your life will suddenly change. Things will be destructive. There will be an overhaul of everything you knew. There is a force in nature that shakes things up from time to time, and the tower signifies this. But these things must tumble if you are to rebuild. Previous belief systems and existing structures must fall.

Major changes, metamorphoses, reorganization of environment or a certain situation, and although we most probably think that it happens against our will, we have arrived here by ourselves. For some time, the circumstances have matured, but we did not pay attention to the signs.

Perhaps right now you are shaken as you feel the earth moving under your feet. Your sense of security is threatened and a natural reaction is to cling to whatever you can. But this inner disturbance is necessary and important. After it passes we will be stronger and capable of to experience the new.

The Tower can indicate sudden death such as a car accident, plane crash, or war. As a world prediction, the Tower could indicate terrorist attacks or a bombing of some kind.

If the Tarot Tower card relates to a person, which is unlikely, it's someone capable of destroying things that seem as solid as mountains - and hurrying to do so. It's a person who is victim of the destructive instinct. Although costly, it's necessary in the grand scheme of things. What goes up must come down, and someone has to make sure of it. But of course, that person is a dangerous ally.

With relationships, the Tower usually predicts the ending of a friendship, a break-up, or a divorce. If the Tower tarot card is one of the Major Arcana cards pulled in a love reading, the probability of success isn't good.

The ending is often connected to deception of some kind and eventual uncovering of the truth. Angry outbursts and emotional meltdowns may occur. This definitely won't be the kind of amicable ending that most people hope for when closing a chapter.

Losing the one you love or hoped to build a future with can be a painfully humbling experience. But if things aren't meant to be, this will be a necessary transition. Sometimes, the hardest part is the initial change. Remember, it is much better to accept the truth and move on than to live a lie.

The Tower in tarot card equals insecurity in every area, especially when it comes to career and finances. Some of the situations that usually follow the fall of the Tower include the loss of a job, a long period of unemployment, or a very stressful work environment. When it comes to business, the Tower can predict failure out of nowhere.

The same can be true of finances as the Tower often symbolizes financial ruin, legal trouble, or bankruptcy. Unless the card has fallen in the past position, this isn't the time for frivolous spending or big purchases. Buckle down and embrace a conservative attitude until this period has passed. Thankfully, even the powerful changes the Tower bring won't last forever.

The Tower Reversed:

When The Tower Reverses the impact of the sudden change is not as severe. You may have been warned in advance and have managed to get out-of-the-way just in time or avoided the change. If the Tower is reversed it can indicate someone who is brutal and hurtful with words. Someone who fights unnecessarily. Someone who is on some kind of inner crusade not knowing that they are doing more harm than damage.

Your situation may indeed be collapsing but instead of accepting it,letting go and moving on you continue to seal up any cracks as they appear, pretending that all is well.

In a love reading, the Tower reversed suggests that you relationship was built on false believes that you continue to believe to the determent of your spiritual self. The relationship is essentially over, but neither want to realize it or come to terms with it.

XVII. The Star

Symbolizes – calmness, peace, silence, inspiration, great insight, deep intuition, heavenly order, brilliant perspectives, new opportunities and simple rewards.

The Star is the glowing light that leads us to greater faith and peace. Just as the heavenly body which it is named after, the Star is a guide, inspiration, a source of miracle, dreams, beauty, deep tranquility and happiness.

When The Star is drawn, focus is on what lies ahead in the future. It shows you that the difficulties will soon disappear and a new, more positive future will begin. Also, by drawing this card, you may feel relieved and relaxed. In the near future you will experience independence and inner strength.

Now you can trust your intuition and listen to the voice of wisdom. If you also check your horoscope, it will only help. Your guardian angel protects you. Result will come soon as you expected, be sure. You have to gain strength, because now is a good time to achieve ideals. Attention should be paid to the development of one aspect of your talent.

The universe abundantly blesses you. When the Star arrives in the upright position, it usually follows a difficult change or traumatic event. Going through something challenging can take the wind out of our sails and cause us to feel like things will never be the same. This might be true.

If the Tarot Star card represents a person, it's someone who inspires reflection, making you ponder where you are in life and where you really want to go. You should cherish it and let that person's attitude influence you, at least for a while. But don't make the mistake of thinking that he or she is or brings some kind of solution.

The Star could indicate star-crossed lovers or a love that is written in the stars.

If you are asking about a reconciliation with an ex, then the Star urges you to heal and move on.

If you are asking about a potential love interest, the star is a good sign, but you may have to wait a little bit. The Star indicates the patience. Don't give up hope.

If you are asking about your current spouse then you are loved and have the perfect relationship. You have a soul mate connection and connect on a spiritual level.

Amazing opportunities are headed your way-some bigger than you've ever imagined. When it comes to career and finances, the Star tarot is a signpost that advancements are around the corner.

If you have been thinking of switching to a field in which you will be "the center of attention," now is the time to make the transition. Go for the promotion, ask for a raise, pitch a new contract. You'll only have a small window time to make these things happen. So, don't delay. The clock is ticking.

The Star Reversed:

The Star Reversed indicates low self esteem. You may not feel very beautiful and have a hard time accepting compliments.

You may have unrealistic ideas about things and have built fantasies that are unattainable.

You have wonderful creative gifts and talents that are either hidden or denied, believing that they or you are either non existant or not good enough. You must find some sense of self-belief and pride in your abilities. It would be a crime to let such talent go to waste.

Find time to reassess your priorities and do things little by little. Surround yourself in an environment where encouragement and creativity find you again. Meditation and yoga might also do the work, as they can help you to be in the moment and reduce your worries. Take any activity that works for you so can reconnect with your inner self again.

XVIII. The Moon

Symbolizes – intuition, consciousness, deception, mystery, hidden enemies, danger, darkness, mistakes.

The Moon tarot card is an interesting one because it carries both - comprehension and delusion.

The Moon also controls illusions and deceits - in the moonlight, things are not what they look like - it reveals hidden desires, worries, fears and phobias that lie in our most secretive depths.

Focus is on internal fears and uncertainty. The Moon shows that it would be wise to pay attention to your intuitive sensations and inner voice. You have to be careful because at this time you may be exposed to dangers and threats. The Moon Map reveals that at some point it is necessary to confront the situation and accept it as it is, for change to become real possibility. Be honest with yourself.

The Moon reflects only the sun's light; it does not have a light of its own. It is a reminder that you may not be seeing things as they really are.

The Moon warns that you maybe a little delusional and have unrealistic hopes and dreams for yourself. The Moon can distort reality. Things look very different under the light of the moon.

The Moon represents your dreams. Your dreams may take on new meaning and be full of deep symbolism. Lucid dreaming is indicated.

If the Tarot Moon card refers to a person, it's somebody who awakens your longing by seeming able to fulfill it. But as said above, that's not the likely outcome. Instead, your longing will probably be increased, which is not at all a bad thing, although frustrating at times.

In love and relationships, the Moon tarot card usually signifies miscommunication. You could be having more frequent arguments with your partner due to this lack of communication. As a result, your relationship will suffer from disharmony and will be strained, as well.

If you are experiencing this in your relationship, allow the light from the Moon to light your path. You will need to channel much of that negative energy into motivation to bring harmony into your relationship once again.

If you are single, The Moon cautions that someone you are interested in may not be all that they seem. This person may be intentionally deceiving you or putting on a mask that will come off later in your relationship. Make sure that you are taking the time to truly get to know this person before you dive too deep into a new relationship with them.

The Moon when connected to money and career signifies confusion or deception. You might be having some trouble deciding what career path to choose.

On the other hand, someone at work may be making things difficult for you to move forward. Outside forces can make it difficult for us to focus on how we really feel. Instead of listening to others, focus on trusting your intuition. By doing so, you can be sure that you make the right decision on how to move forward.

Regarding finances, The Moon is a call out for caution. You will need to make sure that you are wary when making new investments. See that you have all the facts before you decide on what you invest in.

The presence of the Moon in a reading could also mean that someone is intentionally trying to con you out of your hard-earned money, so be careful who you trust. Again, it is important to trust your gut and only make the decision that feels right. The Moon will guide you in the right direction as long as you allow that to happen.

The Moon Reversed:

When The Moon Reverses, dreams become nightmares and the imagination runs wild. You could feel overwhelmed by real or imagined problems or concerns. You may believe that danger lurks in every corner and view others with deep suspicion. Fear paralyses you from taking any action. The dog and wolf scream at you, calling for you to pay attention and deal with your problems. You may project these problems onto others believing that they are the root cause and not you. You trust no one. The problem lies within you, not without.

The Moon Reversed acknowledges your fears about setting out on a new journey in your life. She reminds you that it is very necessary that you make this journey now regardless of how afraid you might feel.

XIX. The Sun

Symbolizes – vigor, wellness and health, generosity, inner strength, understanding, success, growth, abundance, celebration, triumph, magnificence, beauty, traveling, marriage and children.

Focus is on relationships and self-knowledge. The Sun shows that you are pleased with the position you're in and at peace with yourself, that success and happiness will continue. This is a very positive card foretelling material happiness, satisfaction, achievement, and successful alliances. Perhaps you have a achieved long-term goal, or you get approval and recognition for something you've done. You are vibrant, strong, energetic and enthusiastic, warm and generous in heart. It's time to celebrate - sing, dance, make love, allow your creative energy to come out.

This card brings eagerness, peace and a feeling of fulfillment. There is no failure with it. Your light will shine and illuminate the world around.

The Sun can bring clarity to a relationship or situation. Things that seemed dark and unknown will suddenly become bright and very clear.

In divination, if the Tarot Sun card represents a person, it's someone extremely resourceful and willing to help. But don't accept more than you need and can handle, or there may be dire consequences. That person has no obligation at all to serve you, so don't strain his or her patience. If you are in a relationship, the Sun tarot card denotes passion and joy in your life. This is the time to revel in the love you and your partner share.

When it comes to finances and career, the Sun in tarot predicts success and reaching goals. Now is the time to embrace your desires and work toward making them a reality.

The Sun tarot card reassures you that the best is yet to come and even if you've hit a rough patch, things aren't destined to fail. If you are looking into starting a new career, now is a great time to do that. Focus all your energy on being optimistic and stay determined to do what you need to score that new job, role, or make an investment profitable.

The Sun Reversed:

When The Sun reverses it is still a positive card but some clouds now appear in the sky suggesting you still have niggling worries about a situation. You just wish you could let go and enjoy yourself but deep down there is still a feeling of fear and a touch of negativity. You may have doubts about whether things are too good to be true.

The Sun Reversed can suggest that some of the warmth may have gone out of your relationship. Things may have cooled or perhaps you feel worn out by the intensity of it all. There maybe a lot of competition and envy in your relationship as one thinks the other more successful. Too much work can leave little time for play.

When it comes to careers, The Reversed Sun can indicate a very competitive career such as in sales or competition for a particular position. Unhealthy competition or competing with oneself is strongly linked to The Reversed Sun. Your ego may have taken a bashing leaving you smarting from the incident or your inflated ego may be driving everyone insane around you.

XX. Judgment

Symbolizes – awakening, revival, new life, re-encounter, change of position, recovery, spiritual development.

The Judgment tarot card represents an essential moment, a time for choice where nothing will be the same from now on. Some traditions interpret it as the Last Judgment, where the soul is judged and distributed accordingly. Others present it as a card of transition and change, a choice of future.

Judgement advises you to embrace what you have done. There is no looking back, so do not try to cover up what you have done. The past will always remain the past and the deeds you performed will always be with you. Now is a good time to come to terms with the things that you have done.

Judgement is also the card of letting go, especially letting go of regret. There is nothing you can do to change the past, but you can change the future. You can also change how you perceive the past.

Judgement can indicate a spiritual rebirth or awakening. This is a time for change.

When Judgement appears in a reading, major life changes are most likely coming your way. You still might have a little work to do.

When the Tarot Judgement card relates to a person, which is not that often, it means that he or she is very judgmental and not inclined to change his or her mind about it. In the eyes of somebody with that characteristic, few people pass. You are not likely to be an exception, no matter how hard you try. But if you do, you're approved for good.

When you are asking about love and Judgement comes up, there is a strong possibility that you have known your potential lover or partner in a past life many times over. Judgement in love indicates that you and your partner keep getting married over and over again. This can create a calm feeling of knowing and trust between two people. The first time you re-met them in this life was probably a magical moment where "time stopped" and everything disappeared expect the two of your standing there gazing into each other's eyes. There will be a magnetic attraction that goes beyond physical.

The Judgment card in a tarot love reading hints that it's time to consider what you really need in a relationship.

If you're in a relationship, the Judgement card indicates that this relationship is important for you but also speaks of the danger of not fully appreciating each other.

Sit down and take the time to truly connect with your partner. Listen to each other's view, feelings, and needs and figure out what's best for you both.

The Judgement card advises you to not judge potential partners too hasty and also try dating someone outside your usual preferences.

Maybe something beautiful will flourish when you open up to someone with a completely different view or background that you would have otherwise missed out on.

Financially speaking, the Judgement card foretells new contracts and positive cash flow. However, it also warns you about impulse shopping and not to make fast judgments.

Lastly, the card advises you to comply with laws and regulations. Even minor violations can negatively impact your financial growth with hefty fines.

Judgement Reversed:

A reversed Judgement card in a reading can mean that you doubt yourself too much. This self-doubt not only affects your current state of mind but also withholds you from making decisions that can lead to great opportunities.

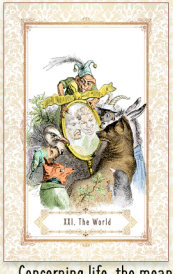

As a result, you are stuck in a rut and you'll stay in a position where you cannot make your next move. To turn things around, you need to regain your strength and confidence. Now is the time to take action!

It can also indicate that you are too hard on yourself and filled with the thought that you are incapable of doing what you need to. This thought can be caused because you are clinging to the opportunities that you have lost in the past or mistakes that you have made. You see them as weakness instead of lessons learned that just made you stronger.

Try to get rid of this kind of negative thoughts. Allow yourself to have a fresh start and a clean slate. But don't forget the lessons you've learned so far!

XXI. The World

Symbolizes – accomplishment, triumph, achieved objectives, guaranteed success, long journey, emigration, a closing of one door and opening of another.

The World tarot card represents the end of the road. And the beginning. This can be the fulfillment of all desires, improvement and success on a physical level, refining skills and talents to the point of impeccability. This is an extraordinary satisfaction and liberation in every meaning of the word. The card does not have negative additional meanings. It is a promise of a miracle, knowledge and happiness when everything is said and done.

Focus is on a significant change in your life. It can portray travel abroad for some time. It shows that the inner journey has been completed and now you are in harmony with yourself.

Concerning life, the meaning is that the material world is not evil and, when you approach it with wisdom and understanding, it creates the conditions needed for your spiritual development. It calls for a successful and definitive completion of an undertaking for the successful realization of a great dream. The World is a very strong card.

The card marks an enormous change, one that pierces your entire inner world, and with it everything around you. Maybe it really means dreams come true, but really actual longings rather than superficial desires and whims. It marks important events in life, the moment you finally discover what you are looking for.

If the World card relates to a person, which is not that often, it's someone who can offer success on a silver platter - but watch out for the price tag. There is one, although it might not be evident at first. If the deal is too good to be true it's probably not. There is no such thing as a free lunch. Be moderate - you can get a lot from such a person, but settle for less than what is offered.

If you are asking about a potential lover, the World card suggests that it will be over before it begins. The World in a marriage placement usually indicates that you will marry later in life. The World card in an existing relationship denotes happiness, peace and inner completion. You and your partner are probably looking towards a new chapter in your relationship like having children, marriage or retirement.

You have probably picked a partner that makes you feel complete and whole. You are selective in who you partner up with. You seek a partner who will complement your background and accomplishments. They could possibly be older and already established. They maybe a good teacher. Both of you probably teach each other a lot.

The World card in a career context can literally indicate world travel or traveling for work. Perhaps you're planning to move to another country, to study abroad for a while, or to leave your job to go on a sabbatical? This card tells you to see this as an awesome opportunity! You can learn from other people and cultures all over the world and increase your universal understanding. Financial improvement is also predicted by the World, but that doesn't mean it will come without effort. The World represents personal effort in all areas for success.

The World Reversed:

The World reversed can suggest a delay in graduation. You may not graduate on time or with your class, but you will graduate.

The World Reversed can also suggest a stagnant period of your life where things aren't going the way you planned. You may get bogged down with all the details and feel like quitting. You slowly drudge through things feeling the "weight of the world" on your shoulders.

The Minor Arcana:

The 56 Tarot cards of the Minor Arcana are divided into four suits: Wands, Coins, Cups, and Swords.

Every one of these suits contains 14 cards: 10 numbered cards, and four cards called "court cards" that include the Page, Knight, Queen, and King. Each of these four suits represents a different area of your life, so you know where to direct this guidance when one of these cards shows up in your Tarot reading.

Each suit has its general meaning, and each card of it brings its very own message in a divination.

The Suit of Swords:

Ace of Swords:

The Ace of Swords brings new ideas and mental clarity. This is a good time to write and expand your ideas. You will have high levels of mental clarity. There is a lot of power in this card, and like the suit of swords, can be used for both good and evil. You will be able to cut right to the heart of a situation and see it very clearly.

The Ace of Swords brings great insight into a situation and the mental stimulation to interpret and resolve a situation. Watch out for lawsuits if combined with more than one sword.

The Ace of Swords likes to cut right to the point. A strong tongue is indicated when this card comes up. You may need to get right to the point in order to get what you want with someone. You have keen directness to a situation and you should use that precision in thought to tell someone exactly what you want.

The Ace of Swords brings justice to any situation. You maybe involved in a lawsuit and the Ace of Swords is a good sign that things will go in your favor.

In love the Ace of Swords is a pleasant card. If you are just starting out dating someone he or she is probably thinking about you a lot. They have a good sense of clarity and direction as to where the relationship is going or wants it to go.

If you are already in a relationship, the Ace of Swords portends a new direction to the relationships. He or she is still thinking a lot about you.

The relationship maybe very fair and balanced too.

Ace of Swords Reversed:

The Ace of Swords is truly double edged. A reversed Ace of Swords can bring misery and pain. Look for other cards for clarification. If reversed, the Sword points to the ground, thus grounding mental energy. Your mental energy may become stifled and suffocated, but it can also bring a degree of grounding that your project needs. It's up to you how you use the sword.

Two of Swords:

The Two of Swords can indicate a relationship, especially because of the number the card represents. Two people have come together with equal force and met each other with resistance. Neither one is able to given in, so the tension builds. If the tensions breaks both will feel heavy. If one gives in both will feel hurt. It's not a good card. Both people need to find balance. Both need to let their guard down. There is something deep in the subconscious waters below.

The number two in the Two of Swords indicates duality and choices. There is a duality between the intellect and emotions. Forces are coming together and a choice between going with ones heart and going with a more logical choice are presented. The Two of Swords indicates that you'd rather not come to any conclusion.

The two swords are literally blocking the emotions and heart. It can indicate a relationship that won't progress because one person is fearful of being hurt, so they cover their heart, while the other partner keeps trying only to keep getting shut down.

It can also indicate that one person really doesn't want to be in a relationship and the other person is trying to force themselves in.

If you are in a relationship, the Two of Swords can indicate fighting, bickering and unsettled thoughts. There is trouble in the relationship. There could also be mental disorders where the person doesn't know how to cope.

Two of Swords Reversed:

The Two of Swords Reversed indicates that a situation that was held at bay, is now coming to a head. You could be dropping your swords and looking for a solution.

Three of Swords:

The Three of Swords is the truth about to come out. Pain is part of the joy we experience. Without sorrow, we don't really know joy. Sometimes we need the tears to help us feel better. Sometimes to grow we need to experience pain. Maybe you need to break up with someone that doesn't fulfill your ultimate life plan. Maybe you have grown apart. Even though the break up is necessary for growth, it is painful and will result in more joy later. You have to break up with the person.As advice, the Three of Swords reminds you that some of your life journey's require some amount of pain. Do not hide from the pain.

The Three of Swords in a relationship can foretell of a breakup. It is the sorrow that results from someone breaking your heart or you breaking someone else's heart.

Three of Swords Reversed:

Even if there are some pains and disappointment when this reversed card appears, that feeling will be healed and the future will be brighter. When you receive this card in the opposite position, you might have dealt with the pain and sorrow that you encountered. No pain lasts forever.

A relationship that has just ended or the person you think will be with you till the end is leaving. You can feel hurt but do not torture yourself. We all have more than just one soulmate. Remember that when one door closes, another one opens.

This card in reverse shows that you are worried about money too much. Take a deep breath and tell yourself that your needs will be met, as long as you do what is necessary and right. Anxiety or fear does not help you. In addition, this will not be a good time to risk your investment, because your hesitation will make any small profit potential (if any) obscured. You should just keep your money safe.

Four of Swords:

The Four of Swords is reminding you that now is a time to rest. You may want to take a relationship break. It can indicate a relationship or work break. You could also be ensnared in a troublesome mental battle of the wits, only to need the calmness that comes with rest.

The Four of Swords indicate a place of relaxation, contemplation, and meditation. You could find solace in a church, a zen garden or near a special body of water. Where ever you feel relaxed and refreshed.

The Four of Swords is telling you that you can heal and restore yourself by silencing your mind.

Life's battles will continue, but you cannot think of this right now. You remain silent, contemplative and ready to restore and heal yourself until you fight again.

In love, the Four of Swords is foretelling of a time where one or both of you need a break from your relationship. It usually indicates a temporary break.

This deadlock situation will not last long. If possible, consider making a small contribution to a job, fund or business that can be trusted, as long as you can happily do this with your own heart. At that time, you will be able to open a new flow of prosperity for your life. If nothing happens, this support will still make you feel comfortable about what you are holding even for a short time,

Four of Swords reversed:

When the Four of Swords appears in reverse, it is a sign that you or someone close to you is exhausted in all respects. This is not the time to push yourself beyond your limits, otherwise, you will risk everything you have worked hard to get, including your health, your work and your relationships. The most important thing right now is to take time to rest.

As advice, the Three of Swords reminds you that some of your life journey's require some amount of pain. Do not hide from the pain.

Five of Swords:

You maybe in a situation where someone is using slander, bribery or other unethical means to fight you. Someone maybe gossiping and spreading false rumors.

The Five of Swords is a warning that you maybe the one who is gossiping. You maybe haughty and arrogant and use any means possible to "win".

The Five of Swords can also be about thieves, con artists, and people who use any means possible to manipulate situations.

The Five of Swords cautions against criminal behavior.

The Five of Swords advises you to walk away. There are no true winners in this battle.

The way you think is just as important as what you say. Even though you may be suffering from some injustice at work, make sure you behave and act appropriately.

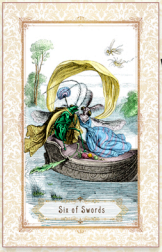

Unfortunately, when this card appears in the spread about love, It implies a conflict that will occur in your relationship. Everything may not happen as you expect in the current relationship. Think calmly and carefully about what causes cracks in this relationship. Let's be honest with yourself first, then be honest with the person you love.

Five of Swords reversed:

When the Five of Swords appears in reverse, you may be urged to prove to someone that you are right about something - and that can be a serious waste of your time and energy. If you are right; whether others believe you or not, that is their problem. You just need to put your mind and energy into more profitable and productive things.

In terms of work, the Five of Swords in reverse implies that you can do something harmful to yourself. In a peaceful work environment, if you do not want to lose your job, do not cause conflict and do not increase the conflict which has occurred before. Please accept the inherent circumstances unless something illegal or unethical happens, and if so, consider reporting to competent authorities. There are some things that are too complicated for you to solve by yourself.

Six of Swords:

The Six of Swords can indicate a catalyst for change. It can indicate that you have met someone that is about to cause profound change. When the Six of Swords appears, it means this is a great time to move or travel in any way. It also implies a metaphor about the prospect of achieving a new development, or a change within you. Often this is a change in the better direction, both internally and externally. You can think about where you want to go.

In terms of love, this Swords card imply a need to change the situation. If you are in a relationship, try to change by going somewhere with your lover.

If you are looking for love, this card shows you need to give up your own inherent habits in order to meet someone new. Let's explore the methods and new habits.

You may be in the process of quitting a job which is no longer suitable for you. You should believe that the Creator will give you the position you want, and everything happens for a reason. Do not hesitate to ask for help or find new information when you face pressures in your new work environment. The Six of Swords can also imply a good change in your business.

Six of Swords Reversed:

The Six of Swords Reversed can indicate travel delays and postponements. The Six of Swords reversed can indicate that you are unable to leave a bad situation

Small mistakes can cause big problems at work. You should be especially careful with important documents and make sure your work is backed up and stored carefully. If you are looking for a job, you may feel as if you are alone in your search journey.

This is not a bad thing. You should let yourself search for jobs in places where are not through anyone else's suggestions or opinions.

In terms of love, the Six of Swords reversed may imply that you are about to face some necessary challenges for your relationship to progress. This does not involve conflict or controversy, as long as you know how to communicate calmly and skillfully. This is not the time to hold on to everything, however, you should think carefully before saying anything sensitive. You will hurt the person you love if you do not think thoroughly about what to say.

Seven of Swords:

One of the main meanings for the Seven of Swords on a basic, mundane level indicates stealing, sometimes for the rush of stealing and other times it is a well designed and thought out plan. If you are the person who is in the shadows, you may not even be aware of the thief, so stand guard over what you value whether it's your heart or your possessions.

In terms of work, the appearance of the Seven of Swords may imply that your boss is strictly following your work. You should work hard and make sure your work will not be reprimanded. Try not to get involved in political work. If you are looking for a job, do not hesitate to talk to someone that you know or have worked with before.

If you have a bonding relationship when this card appears, it conveys a very clear message that trust is an extremely important factor.

If you feel suspicious about your partner for some reason, let's talk about this even though it will be difficult. The passive attack would only make things worse.

If you are looking for love, you will have a chance to meet someone who is very interesting at this time. Do not try to avoid even if you are not interested in a certain relationship. A potential lover will gradually become the one who has a closer connection with you. You need to keep balance.

Seven of Swords reversed:

The Seven of Swords reversed reminds us that sin will not bring any benefit to ourselves. It never does. If you receive this card while attempting to commit some deception/fraud, it clearly states that you will be soon detected. If you have realized that someone in your life is cheating on you, then forget about that person. They must have a reasonable explanation about it if they want to keep a relationship with you.

Just like the Seven of Swords in the upright, the appearance of the reversed card implies that your boss is strictly following your work. This is not the time to ignore the task no matter what level or form it is. Something that seems very small can cause you to lose your trust dramatically from your boss and lead to big problems at work (such as stealing some stationery at the workplace); even worse, you may face the possibility of losing your job. If you are looking for a job, put your trust and willingness first.

You may have a feeling of dissatisfaction about your relationship when this card appears. If that is the case, you should consider carefully the causes and what makes you unhappy before saying it to your partner. Besides, you should think about your role in the discord or problem that both of you are facing.

Eight of Swords:

The Eight of Swords can indicate anxiety. You maybe stuck in a situation where you can't seem to find your way out and this creates a lot of anxiety and tension. You maybe running something over and over and over again in your mind unable to free yourself from repetitive thoughts that do not serve your best interest.

The Eight of Swords can indicate confusion over a situation. You may not know where to go next or what your next move is going to be, so you remain trapped and immobilized.

If you are already in a relationship, the Eight of Swords can indicate that there are power struggles in the relationship. One person restricts and confines the other person. The other person may not be able to see the relationship clearly either, but they prefer it that way.

If you hate your job, believe that you are holding the right and the ability to change the situation. You may not be able to change your whole professional work environment. Nothing can stop you from looking for a different and better prospect if that is what your mind and spirit are required. You have to make choices: either you want to get out of your current situation, or you prepare yourself to continue to accept the same things.

Eight of Swords reversed:

When the reversed Eight of Swords appears, you may be ready to make some important steps and changes in your life after careful consideration and evaluation. You are ready or almost ready to overcome your fears, just keep going. You can seek support if you find it necessary but always believe in yourself.

In terms of love, it implies potential disagreements and petty controversies in your current relationship. You should try to trace the root of the problem, there must be a real reason for the controversy.

If you are feeling lonely and looking for love, this card is a message that you should do something for yourself first. Other people cannot help you to overcome your own shortcomings as well as they cannot fill your sense of emptiness. The fact that you feel empty is keeping you away from the chances of finding the love of your life.

If you want to make changes in your work, the reversed Eight of Swords will tell you that this is possible. You just need to be patient and step forward with the insight needed in your mind. Be open and aware that those meetings can provide an opportunity for you in your career and whatever is expected to change. People may not understand or support you to make changes, as long as you know what is best for you.

Nine of Swords:

The Nine of Swords is often a card that implies worries and fears. You should carefully consider what is bothering you. Do not blame people or circumstances for the concerns you are feeling. Pay attention to deep breathing, which will help you feel calmer.

You will need to be aware of the feeling of insecurity. If you are feeling insecure, consider whether that feeling comes from yourself or whether it comes from other things/other people in your life. If so, you should consider whether you can change something in your relationships to fix this situation. At the present time, there may be some problems that make us feel our life could have been better than reality. Try to be satisfied and enjoy the simple things that life is giving you. Beauty has always emanated from the most ordinary thing.

Something is making you feel insecure about the current relationship. Do not ignore that feeling. Your intuition may be right. If you suspect that something is hidden, the best way is to ask your lover about it. Moreover, if you have recently met a new person who you are interested in, be careful not to be too attracted and immersed in the belief that everything is as good as it seems. Trust always takes time to build up. Do not be too hasty.

In terms of work, Nine of Swords says that you will not solve anything if you keep worrying about work. Instead, focus on what you can control and try to remove the anxiety from your mind.

Nine of Swords reversed:

The reversed Nine of Swords may indicate that You are worried about a problem for a good reason. It is important that you do not let your worries go beyond your control and perform what is needed in your ability. Remember that anxious feelings only exist in the short term.

Just like the upright card, the reversed Nine of Swords shows that it is not helpful if you keep worrying about work. Do the best you can and do not back down if you feel that someone at work does not treat you right or does not appreciate your work in some way.

If you are looking for a job, it is extremely important to show your abilities, talents, and aspirations.

When this card appears in the spread about love, you may need to think deeply about what is happening in your current relationship. If you feel your lover is not honest with you, this is a good time to check again. If you are looking for love, take the time to meet new people at the moment. You may meet someone outside and will have a good time together with him/her. Trust in your feelings.

Ten of Swords:

The Ten of Swords is a card about terrible misfortune, but surprisingly, it often represents tragic problems rather than real ones.

This card also appears when you are feeling like a victim. You are sure that the whole world is treating you unfairly, making your life more difficult. When we get hurt, we often think that things are too tough, unfair and hopeless.

This is not a sign of misfortune and of course, there are still many real tragedies in the world. Sometimes, the Ten of Swords implies a sad event, but you still know when it happens.

In terms of love, unfortunately, the Ten of Swords is not a good sign. Something is not right in your relationship. You should ask questions to yourself, accept reality, and do not close your eyes to the truth. You cannot force someone to love you or treat you respectfully if he/she does not want to.

The appearance of this card may imply that your job situation is about to end. It is best to try to organize everything smoothly and think thoroughly about what you will do if you really lose your job, for any reason. You may have been treated badly by someone. Do not waste your time and effort to get revenge.

In terms of love, unfortunately, the Ten of Swords is not a good sign. Something is not right in your relationship. You should ask questions to yourself, accept reality, and do not close your eyes to the truth. You cannot force someone to love you or treat you respectfully if he/she does not want to. If you have just met someone recently (and you are looking for love), continue to consider and wonder. Everything might not be what it seems.

Ten of Swords reversed:

The Ten of Swords reversed implies that finally, you may have achieved a balanced and clear view of your life and the circumstances involved. Go step by step, and believe in yourself.

Ten of Swords reversed may imply that there are serious problems in your workplace. This is not something that makes you think like the end of the world (or leads to the prospect of ending your career at the current company), however, ignoring these problems will not make them disappear. You can finally see what is best for you and feel your thoughts become clearer.

You may have done the necessary things to improve your relationship when this card appears. That is good new. However, you may still need to progress more if you want this relationship to last and grow. Remember that a relationship is created by two people, any trouble or problem is not entirely the fault of one side.

This card is a messenger. He brings you the challenge and thinks that you will have the opportunity to grow in a problem or a difficult situation. These challenges may not be what you expect.

The Page of Swords wants you to be persistent with these difficult circumstances. You should think of them as challenges training your mettle and spirit. If you accept and overcome those challenges, you will become stronger and more resilient. While you face these challenges, you are encouraged to use the characteristics of the Swords suit - honesty, reason, integrity, and resilience.

As a person or child-like person, he is fascinated by the mind. He may love puzzles, chess, and figuring things out. He may spend hours taking apart a phone and putting it all back together again. He has a good grasp over the mind and emotion.

This person has a tendency to complain and start conflicts where there doesn't need to be any. Page of Swords has a tendency towards dissatisfaction.

If you are single and get the Page of Swords, you maybe searching the Internet for a date. The Page of Swords can indicate that someone maybe spying on you to gather information.

If you are already in a relationship, the Page of Swords can indicate that your relationship maybe going through a period of investigation. You could be fighting a lot, be suspicious, paranoid and on the offense..

In terms of work, the Page of Swords may imply that you will soon be able to resolve some disagreements about work. If you are looking for a job, you may need to behave more modestly in interviews to reach the position you are looking for (but do not underestimate yourself). Be careful when signing contracts.

The Page of Swords reversed can sometimes represent a true person in your life. This person could be someone younger than you, who tends to mind someone's business. Don't be afraid to draw the line with such a person.

In general, this Page card in reverse tells you that you simply can not plan for everything. Things that happen unexpectedly are part of life and you should not torment yourself for them. Let's fix each problem one by one.

In terms of work, the Page of Swords reversed implies that you will soon have to deal with some unwanted conflicts at work or receive a message that you did not expect. No matter what bad things happen, take a moment to think before reacting. If you are looking for a job, you need to be aware that some companies tend to test the candidate's background carefully before hiring.

In terms of work, the Page of Swords reversed implies that you will soon have to deal with some unwanted conflicts at work or receive a message that you did not expect. No matter what bad things happen, take a moment to think before reacting. If you are looking for a job, you need to be aware that some companies tend to test the candidate's background carefully before hiring.

Knight of Swords:

On the positive side, the Knight of Swords is a master of logic and reasoning. He has a sharp mind that makes it easy to capture the focus of any problem. He speaks clearly and frankly and is always powerful. His evaluation is firm and unaffected by emotions. Others rely on his insightful analysis of problems and solutions.

On the negative side, this card does not specialize in diplomacy. He can behave in an unwise and indecent way. When he thinks you are wrong, you will know it. He has an illusion of his good characters and cannot tolerate stupidity. He expects others to follow his point of view. For him, every sense is irrelevant and lacks logic.

Unlike some cards belonging to the Swords suit, this card really brings out a source of optimistic and cheerful energy.

Knight cards often mean that someone or something worth looking forward to is coming to you. The Knight of Swords also implies that the sources of spiritual, emotional and physical energy are at their peak.

When the Knight of Swords appears in the spread related to work, this is an extremely good sign if you are looking for a job. A job that you are looking forward to may suddenly come to you. If you are currently working, you will be a little engaged. You will accomplish so many things that make your peers become inferior. That is mainly their problems, do not feel uncomfortable about it.

You may be in love with someone, whether you are male or female. If you are currently in a relationship, then it seems to become brighter, deeper and more satisfying. If you are looking for love, it will probably come faster than you expected, remember to keep in touch with someone who is willing to open his/her heart. You should take care of your appearance and date him/her. You will find a lot of fun.

Knight of Swords reversed:

The Knight of Swords reversed may imply that you need to be alert, especially with new companies. Someone may not be honest with you although he/she is not a bad person, instead, he/she carries bad energy/information/idea.

When the Knight of Swords appears in reverse in the spreading related to work, you should watch out for a colleague who takes a large slice of your credit without feeling ashamed. Make sure you have a record and archive to prove your efforts. Someone may also blame you for something that is not your fault, stand up for yourself. This will be a good time to complete your resume and take careful preparation steps, instead of constantly rushing to find a job.

When this reversed card appears and you are in the process of searching for love, this will be a noticeable signal and a closer look when you meet a potential lover. A person who struggles to impress you at the first time does not mean that he/she was out of chances. If you are already in a relationship, there is a possibility that something may be bothering your partner. If you feel this, just ask him/her.

Queen of Swords:

The personality of the Queen of Swords combines the positive energy of the Air element of the Swords suit with the inner focus of a Queen. You can always rely on her to know exactly what will happen. Above all, she is passionate about sincerity and lives on her commitment to authenticity. Lies and jokes are not her concern because she is not easily deceived. She experienced many things in the world, both good and bad. Queen can judge the situation quickly. She understands human foolishness but does not blame them. She knows when to avoid trouble and simply find a way to deftly overcome it. She likes honesty and frankness. Her observations are impartial but never hurt anyone. In fact, this Queen character has a sense of humor. She likes to laugh and is always witty. She knows that life does not need to be serious at all times. The Queen of Swords is always fresh with a straightforward personality, moreover, she never pretends.

This Queen card can refer to a woman in your life. This is a person you should take seriously. She may have black hair and black eyes. If this card does not imply a human being, it may tell that you need to be strong and honest in some situations to meet your needs. You may need to push yourself stronger.

Even if you know very well what you want to do in the workplace, this is still not the time to convey your views to everyone. You should not act excessively with any disregard or disrespect. If you are looking for a job, you are currently in a good time to express yourself. You can rely on the women in your life to point you in the right direction.

In terms of love, the only note about this card is to be careful with strong impulses. We are all taught that we will receive better things if we are well-behaved, and that view is absolutely correct in this case. Your mother or someone like your mother may disapprove your relationship, whether she wants it or not. You should find out where your limit is in this regard and let that woman know.

Queen of Swords reversed:

This Queen card in reverse can often refer to a woman in your life. She may not be a good person, usually, this woman has black hair and black eyes. You will want to link to the good side of this woman if possible. She may (sometimes accidentally or unintentionally) prevent important things from being completed.

This card in reverse implies problems with communication at work. Sometimes, there is information that is misunderstood or misinterpreted between people and even things like computers. You should take the time to think thoroughly and make sure that you understand the guidelines and the best information as possible. These assumptions can be very vague now even in the case of either you are working or you are you looking for a job.

King of Swords:

He is an intelligent man who can receive and work with all kinds of information. As a master of reasoning and logic, he analyzes any problem easily. He can give a quick solution and explain them transparently to others.

In a chaotic situation, he solved problems and clarified everything, so they could continue. He has sharp eloquence and mind. He is always honest and reliable and would resolve any situation fairly and submissively. When asking for an assessment, he can help to make fair and impartial decisions. He is a man of integrity and lives up to his highest moral standards. He encourages others to follow him and in that way, they often live up to his direction and expectations.

This card often represents a strong, powerful and righteous man in your life. On the other hand, if this card does not represent any real person, you may be tempted to think about how things affect you personally.

You should consider the feelings of others before taking action.

If you are looking for a job, the person who will hire you may be a man and you will have to impress him at every level to get that job. Be aware of your limits, do not be too rushed to upset others.

In terms of love, The King of Swords may imply that a man with strong opinions can play a certain role in your relationship. If this man is the person who loves you, it means that you will have to accept him for who he is, and whether you are male or female, you will treat your partner best by promoting the feminine part towards you. However, do not suffer if you are abused. This man may be stuck between his nature and overcoming his limits. You should know to protect yourself.

King of Swords reversed:

The King of Swords reversed often represents a man who is strong and has a righteous opinion in your life. He is particularly unwilling or uncomfortable with new ways of doing things, so it will be difficult to make him open to any kind of change.

It is possible that there is a man in your work environment might be repressing instead of saying things that will be useful to him. If you are looking for a job, as well as the upright meaning, this card implies that your employer can be a man and you will have to impress him at every level to get that job. You should emphasize your understanding of traditional rules and the importance of complying with workplace principles.

In terms of love, the reversed King of Swords may imply a man with strong opinions can play a certain role in your relationship. He may be very strict with any mistake. Just like the meaning of the upright card, if this man is your lover, you will have to accept him for the way he is. You should show your feminine side in this relationship but do not endure being abused.

The Suit of Wands:

Ace of Wands:

The Ace of Wands is the potential in any project. It is singular and raw. The Ace of Wands is the initial burst of creative energy. It is the raw energy for starting a new project. It's the motivation, the spark, the idea. You have the courage to pursue something new, different, and exciting. Now is the time to start a new project.

The Ace of Wands brings new job opportunities. You may have a great idea that is ready to be activated into reality. It's not merely the thought of doing it, it is also the small baby steps you'll take to make it happen. Make that list and then go ahead and implement it!

If you are looking for a new position when the Ace of Wands card appears, then you should know that something new and very active will come to you soon. Be brave to ask for what you want or need in your field of work or career. You will be able to achieve more success than what you expect.

If you are single, this card may imply a beginning of a new love affair coming to you. Prepare yourself for the way which you feel good to be ready for love. If you have a very promising relationship, this card tells you that this relationship is about to undergo a "new start" and you will know each other better. Let's express yourself more.

Ace of Wands reversed:

The Ace of Wands reversed is generally related to completion and work/career. When this card is in the opposite position, you may find it a bit difficult to stay focused and avoid becoming ineffective. So, you should keep your focus on one thing at a time.

The reversed position of the Ace of Wands shows that there are many positive possibilities that will appear in your workplace as well as in relation to your work, but at the same time, some negative aspects may also appear. For example, you can find a good job, but your boss is too strict or maybe you will be misunderstood at work, leading to the feeling that you have no value to the company or the task performance. Do not go straight into conclusions, ask questions if you feel like you are in trouble.

Just like the upright card, if you do not have a lover, this reversed card may imply the beginning of a new love relationship. This card also indicates the birth of a baby. If that is a possibility for you and you are not ready to be a parent, make sure you get the right attention and preparation. In the context of an existing relationship, this card expresses a strong need to think before speaking and listening carefully from your partner. Misunderstanding will happen easily at this time.

Two of Wands:

You could be preparing for a journey, partnership or acquisition. You have applied the raw power, you just need to make a decision and go. This card comes right after the aces. Now that you've realized that you have the power to do something, you are cautiously preparing for it, whether it is writing the plan, organizing the team, designing a new home or even redecorating.

The Two of Wands may indicate real estate. You could be in the process of looking for houses or new property to buy. There is a likely chance that this will be an investment home. You might be thinking about rent a basement apartment or knowing that the equity will send your kids to college

The fire in the Two of Wands definitely indicates foreign property or traveling somewhere exotic. You have many options, but you are being careful. You prefer to think things through before making major financial decisions.

In love, the Two of Wands predicts that a decision is about to be made, but right now there is a pause. This is a time to reflect on the relationship and where it is going next.

If you are in a relationship, the Two of Wands could suggest that you two are planning a trip. There is a big possibility of meeting someone foreign or the person you are involved with is foreign. They could also be from a very wealthy family.

You will combine everything together in new ways. The work is seemed a lot smoother. If you are looking for a job, this is the message that you are going to find a job that suits you. Do not let anyone destroy or hinder your progress. You will be more organized and balanced than you can see about the job.

Two of Wands Reversed:

In general, Two of Wands reminds us to put our emotions into perspective. Sometimes the things you feel do not completely reflect the situation. Also, sometimes you have to make changes and try new things to enjoy life. You should pay close attention to balance if you are considering coping with risk and/or making big changes in your life.

You can expect things to go well in the field of work. You may be pleasantly surprised at new work or new processes at work or even be happy with a new job offer. On the other hand, it may be time to leave the current job which is used to be a good job for you in the past. But if you decide to leave, do not cut off your old contacts.

When the Two of Wands appears in reverse in a spread about love, you can expect that your relationship will deepen and become more cohesive. If you are looking for love, you will probably soon start a new relationship. Someone can completely make you fall in love at first sight and make you swoon, enjoy this miracle!

Three of Wands:

This card shows the opportunity to broaden your horizons through studying, travelling, entrepreneurial business and learning. You need to be more aware of the opportunities that exist around you right now as they may be better than you think. You can look at the best opportunities and know that they are waiting for you outside of your present world, so it is time to put out ambitious. You should consider what you can do to open the door for yourself and develop those opportunities. They can also be changes or challenges ahead which involve expanding your vision as well as invading new territory. The man in this card can see beyond his own future. Therefore, you are likely to be aware of upcoming changes as well as challenges and be prepared for anything.

The Three of Wands also describes the trip. This card encourages you to dream about where you want to travel and what you will discover along the way. This card shows you are going to go to a country which is far away, and then, having the opportunity to grow and learn new things. It encourages you to be brave and trust yourself so that you can complete yourself as well. Your affectionate relationships are fine, as long as your partner is willing to treat you equally. If not, this may be the time to leave or give up after you have explained everything clearly. If you have met a new person recently, this card tells you that he or she values you quite well.

If you are looking for love but do not feel any prospects, you are probably spending too much time and effort on your career. Let's think about allowing yourself more time to enjoy your personal life.

Three of Wands reversed:

Generally speaking, the Three of Wands in reverse may imply a wish is coming true, in a positive direction. You should think carefully about what you really want and the reason why you want to achieve that dream. You may find that unexpected insights come to you, probably about yourself or about others, and about the world. In general, you can believe in this new knowledge.

It also shows that you have tried to engage in the journey of self-improvement but cannot accomplish goals set. You may have encountered some problems and delayed your route. You feel frustrated and think that you have wasted time right from the start. Maybe, you do not recognize but the fact that failure precedes success is also an important part of your life. It helps you grow and improve yourself.

When this reversed card appears in the context of work, it tells you that you will make a big step in your career. You may even be prepared to start your own business in some ways. In general, you can expect good things about what you are doing. Do not hesitate.

In a relationship, the Three of Wands reversed points out that neither you nor your partner is capable of pursuing each other's long-term goals. Your lover may want to travel or to expand their world by moving between regions or between countries, but you do not want to do so. This becomes a big issue for your relationship. You both need to talk to each other and come to a compromise.

Four of Wands:

The Four of Wands often implies that you may be about attending a special event - this event will take place in the direction of more fun than you anticipated, so, join and enjoy the good times. Your work also looks good at this point. You will feel proud of yourself and others will feel the same about you.

This card predicts the anniversary, good times, a happy family and the good news. In arithmetic, number four symbolizes stability and solid foundation, and with this Wand card, you are enjoying a happy and steady time. This card shows a sense of harmony and balance as well as fulfillment, and thus represents a period of peace and joy in life. All of them are the result of extraordinary efforts in the face of difficulties and challenges. This is one of the most active cards in the tarot deck. It indicates luck, satisfaction and perfection.

If you have worked on a project, you will achieve a milestone and worth celebrating. You have completed a critical phase of the project and may feel very proud of what you have accomplished so far. This card signals the time of joy and satisfaction in life, expresses personal satisfaction for a fulfilled job, a goal which has been achieved and a vision are beginning to be recognized. In the terms of love, this card may imply that your relationship is about to be fully committed and it may be a potential card for a wedding event. If you are looking for love, the card shows that special events (such as weddings, parties, celebrations) are great occasions and places for you to meet someone special. If you are invited to an event like this, and you do not have a lover, then try to join and impress people.

Four of Wands Reversed :

Seek stimulation from imaginative individuals to sustain your creative powers. When the Four of Wands is reversed, you may be losing touch with the needs of others; your inherent problem-solving skills could go dormant. You need stimulation and contact with creative individuals of a like mind. Consciously seek it out because it's not going to come to you.

Five of Wands:

The Five of Wands may indicate that this is a highly competitive time in your life. You may feel fierce and full of fire. You want to get to the top of the situation and are up against people who have equal amounts of clout and ambition. You may need to work just a little bit harder to stand out among all the other people.

This card usually refers to competition for work/career, but sometimes it can also imply competition in love. Do not be afraid to fight because of your own values that you can use against your opponents, and you have reason to succeed in this "war". But above all, you need to work hard to see the results.

When the Five of Wands appears in the upright, you need to believe in yourself stronger than you ever did. Keep your head high and have faith that you will win things that belong to you. You may be thinking about a change in your career, you should know that you can be totally successful.

The person you are having a crush on, maybe being pursued by others. Even so, you should try your best. You need to know that you have done everything possible for this relationship. Five of Wands also has other meanings that you will be pursued by one or several other romantic people.

Five of Wands reversed:

The reverse of the Five of Wands may imply a conflict or multiple competitions, usually in the field of work/career. Know that you are not (and should not) face this competition alone because there are always great mentors around you when things get tough. You should deal with each one and think carefully before acting or saying something.

There may be some disagreements going on at work if you are currently working when this card appears. You should think carefully and calmly, and stay away from controversy. Make sure that you are well-prepared for your defenses such as behavioral records, written documents or there are witnesses during the discussion.

If you are in a relationship in which the two of you are committed to each other when the Five of Wands appears in reverse, what looks like a conflict at the appearance can really be beneficial to your relationship (as long as both sides are fighting for justice) because you will learn a lot about yourself, about the other half, and eliminate atmosphere of tension.

If you are looking for love or having a crush on someone who does not seem to care about you, know that their "closed heart" status is largely due to their problems, not yours. If you really want to be a partner with this person, you will need to learn how to be patient.

Six of Wands:

The Six of Wands signals victory. So if you are anxious about a court proceeding or want to win your lovers heart, know that you will be victorious.

The Six of Wands can make you feel really good about yourself. You may feel as if you have a lot of support from everyone around you. On the other hand, you could adore someone else where by adoring them makes you feel amazing.

The Six of Wands suggests that you may need someone that boosts your ego, while the other person is perfectly find doing the boosting and admirations.

This is the fire of balance. You feed off each other energetically.

If you are looking for a new job, this card is a very positive sign. You will find something better than what you are hoping for. If you are currently working in a desirable position, things will be better than you ever expected. Your efforts are appreciated. Let's continue to keep up the achievements in the work you are doing.

Six of Wands reversed:

In general, this card in reverse is still a card that talks about winning. However, you may need to be careful about who you are trusting. Someone who looks like they are trying to support you, but actually are jealous or have negative thoughts about you in some ways. You will realize you are doubting your ability.

You may feel negative about yourself, as well as the fact that you consider you have bad effect on everyone around you. You are lack of confidence, and need the support and recognition of others to give you strength. You should trust your instincts when evaluating people and do not hesitate to protect yourself when necessary.

Seven of Wands:

The Seven of Wands can indicate your fears of everyone being against you, but it can also indicate that you are up against your family with a sole opinion. You think your opinion is correct and you won't budge on it. You are the underdog, the defender. Know your position and master it because you'll need it to win a victory.

You maybe feeling very defensive because everyone is against you. Be mindful that you don't unnecessarily attack someone. Your feelings maybe more illusion than reality.

You may feel overwhelmed with feelings of being singled out. You've reached a plateau and people may want to take you down or fight to get to your position.

In love it can indicate that you and your partner have a lot to do. You maybe arguing a lot, which will be followed by hot sex. You maybe in a relationship that your parents don't support. You and your partner need to constantly defend your relationship to your parents.

If you are single, the Seven of Wands can indicate that you have many unwanted admirers. Maybe you do not believe that they are good options. You may wish the keep a wall up and stand your ground while hiding your feelings.

Seven of Wands Reversed:

When the Seven of Wands shows up reversed, you should admit defeat at this point and start over. Perhaps a business isn't going as well as planned. You might need to re think how to operate things. Maybe you are taking on too many tasks and need to hire someone to help you. The Seven of Wands Reversed indicates that an assessment needs to take place.

Eight of Wands:

The Eight of Wands is a card of action! A sudden burst of energy is going to emerge in the form of your solution. Everything will suddenly be clear. This sudden burst is what will propel us forward. It's in your best interest to take action. Hold nothing back.

The Eight of Wands is one of the travel cards. You might be traveling somewhere via airplane. Look for cards like the Six of Swords or Knight of Wands to confirm this.

The Eight of Wands can predict moving into a new home. Look for the Two of Wands to support this.

The Eight of Wands signals swift romances and being swept off your feet. Look for the Knight of Cups to confirm romantic interludes and bubbling passion.

Do it. Go for it. The Eight of Wands is already poised to hit its target, so continue on the path you are going down. If you want to send your boyfriend a text message professing your feelings, do this. On the other hand, if you want to break up with your girlfriend, do this. Whatever it is that you feel you need to do, go ahead and continue with the plans to finish it.

Eight of Wands Reversed:

If the Eight of Wands is reversed there is a delay in action. Things don't seem to be coming, but should. Someone is holding back, but really wants to message or contact you. There could be an unnatural feeling of things not running the way they should. There is a lack of accuracy.

The Eight of Wands Reversed can denote haste. You may have been careless with a project and not met your mark.

When the Eight of Wands Reverse comes up in a love reading, you may fall out of love with a person that you rushed into a relationship with. There could be an immediate end to a relationship. The Eight of Wands reversed could also indicate the end of short and sweet summer romances.

Nine of Wands:

The Nine of Wands is where you want to give up. You are tired, fed up, and drained. You have inner strength and willpower. It is even possible that you didn't know you had this inner, spiritual strength, but you do. The last obstacle to your battle has to be overcome. Failure could be imminent as well, especially if you falter. You may need to retreat for a moment and understand why you are failing. Thing have not been going the way you intended them. There is a gap in your fortress and in your mind. You make the same mistakes over again, but don't know why. You need to go within to see what it is.

Nine of Wands Reversed:

The Nine of Wands Reversed can signal someone who creates enemies that don't exist. It takes the upright Nine of Wands to the extremes. This person might even be crazy with schizophrenia, paranoid delusions or some kind of personality disorder.

In love, you probably know a lot about failure. You keep doing the same things, which don't actually work in your favor.

If you are in a relationship, it is probably a lot of work. You may be in a co-dependent relationship or a relationship full of unhealthy drama that you thrive on. Your misinformed about what true love is. Love is not a battle. Fighting and having hot makeup sex is not love. Co-obsessions are not love either.

Havoc can occur when the Nine of Wands appears reversed. The walls of your confinement are easily broken because of lazy and sloppy work. You could create a plan to hurt someone or someone is creating a plan to hurt you because they perceive this person as a threat. The threat is usually because of some delusion of the person who suffers from the reversed Nine of Wands.

Ten of Wands:

The Ten of Wands forewarnings that you have a lot of responsibilities and burdens. You struggle to finish, but you will get it done.

The Ten of Wands can indicate a physical move. There maybe heavy boxes and furniture that you move without help. It is usually a short, residential move (not a move overseas). You will feel relieved and very satisfied when all the boxes and furniture are moved over to your new place. Of course, then you will have to unpack and reorganize everything. Moving is burdensome.The Ten of Wands in love may indicate that one partner is putting in all the work, while the other partner sits back and reaps the rewards. Depending on the situation, this could go either way. If your partner is recuperating from a surgery,

The Ten of Wands can indicate that you are taking care of them full time. If the Ten of Wands is a theme in your relationship, this relationship is bound to break at some point.

The Ten of Wands can indicate that your financial situation is strained and you put in a lot of effort for a little payout. Minimum wage jobs are indicated, especially jobs in manual labor industry, restaurant staff, and farming.

Ten of Wands Reversed:

When getting the Ten of Wands reversed, you may be feeling tired and you are dealing with procrastination and fall into the depth of tension. These are not the feelings you need to experience. You can fix it just by taking a little rest. Even spending a few hours to relax and relieve stress can also be helpful. You can find and make friends with people who are optimistic.

This card in reverse is a message that the best thing to do is to find a new job when you are dedicated to your current job but you feel dissatisfied with your position. You may be treated unfairly, and even in a scarce market, you do not have to accept it. Take time to think deeply about what is going on.

Like the upright meaning, the appearance of the Ten of Wands in reverse often implies a difficult period in your current relationship. Overall, King of Wands is a positive sign. Even if this card does not represent a specific person in your life, it still implies that a man around you always wants to give you some help and good thoughts about you. You will feel ambitious and goal-oriented, and other things more than that. You will have enough financial power to accomplish what you are thinking, just be positive.

King of Wands reversed:

The King of Wands reversed shows hasty and impulsive decision. This can be a hegemonic, self-centered, and bossy person. This is not the way to make others obey, but a tendency to lose control. The King of Wands often does not even realize he has crossed the line between assertiveness and tyranny.

He may be the business partner who is taking advantage of you for his purpose. He may be an unscrupulous competitor. In love, he represents an interesting courtship that can be devastating emotions. He is only suitable for limited relationships, romantic and short vacations, or passionate encounters. The fire burned and faded in a moment.

The King of Wands reversed is a good sign when considering emotional issues, especially if you are interested in an older person who is enthusiastic, kind, and warm. Regardless of who you are interested in, this card still implies that the person you love may need time to think smoothly about what he/she needs and wants in the relationship with you. It is important to be patient and open your heart when he/she finds the answer to those questions. You should take one step at a time.

The Suit of Cups:

Ace of Cups:

The Ace is the very beginning, before any kind of manifestation, it is rather likely that this card announces that the time is right to become open to new possibilities and opportunities, to trust your intuition and go with the flow. However, falling in love and relationships are in the domain of Two of Cups. Ace of Cups is more personal, it is about you and you being in tune with your own emotions and feelings, as well as being able to receive and spread your gifts, talents, inspiration, creativity, love.
It is the ability to share with the world still not sharing itself. Ace of Cups is the creative and nurturing force which exist but it is still not directed to the certain object.
As a person the Ace of Cups can represent someone who cries at the drop of a hat and whose emotional stability is questionable. They may feel a little too much. They maybe highly psychic, but don't know how to balance and channel the information in a constructive way. When the Ace of Cups comes up in a reading there is a strong possibility of a new love. One person is feeling very much in love with you. The feeling could be mutual, but we really don't know unless we see the Two of Cups. The Ace of Cups represents the feelings of love, not the action that we take when we feel love
This card can show a new good promotion/job waiting for you. You and your work are appreciated and valuable - you will soon see these signs.

Ace of Cups reversed:
The Ace of Cups reversed is a positive omen, but in general, you may still feel a bit difficult. Keep in mind that you can handle most of the deadlocks with reasonable attention through times
Work will progress well. If you are looking for a new job or trying to make a change, you will notice some signs of improvement in the coming weeks, though it does not immediately happen, be patient.

Two of Cups:

The Two of Cups shows the beauty and power created when two become one. It reflects balance, mutual respect, and harmony in the relationship. Not "me", but "we", and both parties are focused on a favorable outcome for all or both sides will win.

It usually refers to the normal love relationship, but that is not the only meaning of this card. At the same time, it implies balance, friendship, joy, and sharing.

The Two of Cups shows you are appreciated for your ability, you will feel more comfortable in the work very clearly, even if you do not like your job anymore. If you are looking for a job, it seems like you will find it soon.

This card represents true love, balanced relationships, responsibility and most of the thing we often desire when it comes to love and relationships. Anyway, that does not mean "no matter what", your relationship/love will remain strong. It only shows the background, the real factors, the stability and the potential for true love as well as the glamorous existence. And if you are looking for love, then relax, love is about to knock on your door.

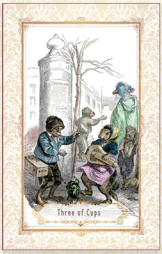

Two of Cups reversed:

With the Two of Cups reversed, you will have trouble establishing a loving relationship or relationship with a new partner because of a lack of trust or unfinished business in the past. You do not like to open your heart and express true feelings, leading to isolating yourself from the surrounding people. Your gestures and behavior have become too cautious and awkward.

In the upright, the Two of Cups is a very good card, which speaks of balance and bonding. Conversely, it says that you are under the other person's control, just as the partner think they are better than you or their opinions are more important.

When you get this card in reverse, you may find that suddenly you do not like your job as much as before, and you may feel uncomfortable as if your colleagues are behaving in the opposite ways to you. Do not panic. This is probably a transient phase. But if the current job does not suit you, then you may need to start thinking about making a change. You should believe in your instincts.

Three of Cups:

The Three of Cups is the surest sign of a celebration. You might be going out dancing with friends for a night on the town. It could be a late-night thing at the night club or a chilled out house party. Everything around you will be bountiful and fun!

If you are asking about a possible romance, the Three of Cups indicates that they just want to be friends. This isn't the worst position, but not the most desired. Be careful with your heart.

If you are asking about how someone feels towards you, then they feel a great friendly vibe from you.

Four of Cups:

The Four of Cups suggests that you are depressed and perhaps too depressed to make good judgment calls. You maybe missing good opportunities because you are so sad. This sadness maybe caused by outside forces that you have no control over.

If you are already in a relationship it can signal apathy and boredom. If you are asking about a potential love interest, then they will probably reject you.

You may not like your job very much, but at least it gives you money. Remember that no one is really completely deadlocked.

You should focus on your strengths, on what you have and can do, not what you can not do and not have. If you do not know where your finances are going, set up your specific goals and plans, and then outline the steps that will help you achieve them. You should consider realistically your financial situation in order to control it.

Four of Cups reversed:

When the Four of Cups Reverses itself, you maybe getting your life back on track. You maybe thinking about meeting new people because the old ones bore you. You maybe coming out of a period of boredom and stagnation.

The Four of Cups Reversed can signify deeply psychic feelings that border on illusions. There could be a thin veil between the spirit world when you are lost in deep meditation and rituals. A lack of grounding is indicated.

You may finally be ready to overcome the shadow from the past and move towards a brighter, happier prospect with love in the future. You should spend a lot of time thinking about what and who you really need in your life. Let's look forward to the future ahead, not the past behind.

Five of Cups:

The Five of Cups signals a break up, a divorce or other emotional loss. You could have a falling out with a good friend or spouse. When a breakup happens it usually happens because there is trouble in a relationship. Trouble can brew because of a lack of love or even physical and/or emotional abuse. Perhaps the breakup was a good thing. The Five of Cups indicates that your relationship was imbalanced and now you can move away and correct the imbalances.

The Five of Cups talks about unfinished reality or not achieving the expected results. You are feeling frustrated that a situation is not working out as you wished, and instead of setting up another plan, You are re-immersed yourself in torment and regretted about what has been lost.

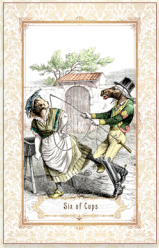

Forgiveness and recovery after the emotional loss are essential. If you are feeling frustrated by the actions of others, forgive them from the heart to let yourself be free. You also need to re-evaluate your expectations.

Five of Cups reversed:

The Five of Cups reversed implies that it is likely that you will observe new prospects as well as new projects. It is time to hope and to reach out to others if you are in need of something from them, such as the need for work, attention, concern, or anything else. You need to trust yourself and believe that your needs will be met.

With the Five of Cups reversed, you are starting to realize that you will be able to find a more meaningful and happy relationship in this stage. You do not necessarily have to accept being abused or trying to plunge into a relationship with an unsuitable person. If you do not feel like it right now, be prepared, because you will realize it soon. Believe in what your instincts tell you This reversed card reminds you to be thankful for what you have got. Also, you are entering the stage of finding yourself as well as seeing who you really are and what you can really do to bring more prosperity to your life. Think positive, and nurture your self-esteem.

Six of Cups:

The Six of Cups is a card of childhood, nostalgia, naive happiness, and generosity. You want to go back to your previous happy memories, whether as a kid, a teenager or an adult. However, memories belong to the past and they reflect some aspects of your life in the past. You may feel that the only way to connect with this happiness is to escape from the past, where you can think about happy and beautiful memories, instead of dealing with current challenges. It is important that you must live in the present and accept it rather than daydreaming about the past.

This is a very good time for work related to creativity. If your work is not creative, then make sure you spend some time painting, writing, creating memorial albums, etc, generally any hobby related to creativity. You will find that your daily normal work will reap much better results.
If you have a romantic relationship, the appearance of upright Six of Cups may indicate that this relationship needs to be "re-focused" towards the future. Let's talk about your goals and your dreams. You should discover and try new things. It is important not to let yourself be trapped in the past. Sometimes, this card implies the recurrence of an old lover in your life. Think carefully before starting over an old romance. You need to remember the reason why that person becomes your ex-lover.

Six of Cups reversed:

This is a card of nostalgia, childhood love, generosity, impartiality, and also an innocent dream of life. On the contrary, it shows that you may have unrealistic ideas about a particular stage in your life, which are based on your dreams and ideas when you were young.
When you get this card in reverse, that may be a sign that the sublimate state in your work has passed. However, that does not necessarily mean something bad.You should think carefully before making a decision on whether to do something to deal with the problems you are having at work or not.
The Six of Cups Reversed can indicate that you have been holding on to the past in a negative way. You could be constantly lamenting about how abusive your parents were long after you have left home. In some instances, the abuse suffered was minimal compared to the way you view it now

Seven of Cups:

The Seven of Cups indicates being intoxicated with illusion, glamour, daydreams, and building castles in the sky. You may not even be able to see reality. This can also indicate drug addiction because when we are high, nothing is clear and nothing is real. Illusions are easily built.
The Seven of Cups can indicate having no direction because of too many choices. Perhaps you are sitting around daydreaming too much.
The Seven of Cups can indicate that your financial position maybe built on false beliefs about money.
Seven of Cups wants to tell you that you may be able to grasp many options in hand, but be clear and specific about what you want in a relationship, evaluate those options carefully and thoroughly, be honest with all the people involved (including yourself), and then decide.
Remember that dashing emotion only occurs in the early stages of a relationship, it cannot last forever. Many good relationships will progress to a more sedate and less impulsive stage at some point. However, this does not mean that you will get bored with your love

Seven of Cups reversed:

The Seven of Cups Reversed indicates an ending to the illusions. It corresponds directly to the emotional state of the Chariot: having control and direction.

In love, the Seven of Cups Reversed can signal unrequited romantic feelings.

Eight of Cups:

Sometimes, the Page of Cups implies that your heart is completely filled with love and emotion. At these times, you should feel free to express and enjoy your feelings without thinking of anything else.

When the Page of Cups appears, it is a sign that allows the childish aspect of you to show up. Like most of the cards in the Cups set, this is a positive sign and implies emotional encouragement.

The card may also show that someone who looks smaller than you gives you a certain message. In general, this card expresses a need to play, dream and have a little fun. When this card appears, it sometimes means that you are living too seriously.

Even if things are always bad with the job you have been engaged in for the past ten years, the appearance of this card shows that you still have reason to hope and expect a positive future. No matter who you are, you have many career options. Life can change quickly, and sometimes it changes in a positive direction. If you are not satisfied with the current job, you still hold the key to change it.

Page of Cups implies that a person younger than you (probably only younger than you a few days) may be part of your love prospect. Remember that love regardless of age, so do not underestimate anyone even if they are younger than you. This post implies that someone is trying to impress you quickly, give that person a chance.

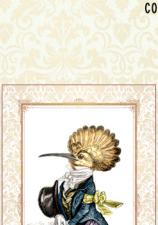

Page of Cups reversed:

Overall, this card in reverse represents a need to play, dream and have a little fun. However, you need to know the limits. Everything has the price that you have to pay in a certain way. Be aware of the consequences of what you do.

When this card appears in reverse, it demonstrates that you are highly appreciated at work. However, you need to be careful not to despise the rules or be too sloppy even if you work for yourself. If you are unsure about what is happening, or the reason why you are getting into trouble, ask for advice from a trusted friend or an experienced family member.

The Page of Cups reversed signifies a warning when appearing in a spreading related to the relationship. You may be putting your heart into a person who is not ready, pay attention to the signs that you are getting. You should set a time limit on how long you will have a crush on that person, in case he/she is not interested in you. We all have more than just one opportunity to find a soul mate and have many opportunities for happiness. Do not concentrate on thinking about only one person.

Knight of Cups:

He loves to be groomed and is typically one of the more attractive knights. He or she can be someone refined.

He or she may brood over many things. Life is a subtle emotional drama for them. They may go from relationship to relationship. They can even have entire relationships in their own head. They are typically dreamy and soft spoken, but can also be quite a flirt.

The Knight of Cups is like most of the cards in the Cups set - a good and optimistic one in a spreading. Like every Knight card, this card often appears with certain messages.

When this card appears in a spread, the projects at work will take place almost sooner and more active than you expect. You should be proud of your accomplishments and contributions.

Knight of Cups is a very positive card when it appears in a spread about the relationship. If you are single or have no relationship with anyone, this card usually implies that someone is going to impress you. If you are in a relationship, this Knight can imply a proposal/marriage. At least in the context of love, this card will always carry positive messages which you will love to hear. Let's open your heart to explore your own feelings.

This card can show that you will soon receive good news about your financial problems. The Knight often implies joyful and positive messages. If you have questions about your financial situation, and there are no other cards which carry the specific message to you in the same spreading, so this case is almost certainly not as bad as you think.

Knight of Cups reversed:

When the Knight of Cups is reversed, you could be swindled or conned. This person could use your heart as a method for extracting what they want out of you. You could have your heart broken by someone who plays the field with little regard for feelings.

The Knight of Cups reversed is all about themselves and little else. They are self absorbed and can be emotionally manipulative. They could be very attractive and use their looks as a weapon. Love to them maybe a game.

As a romantic partner, they could seem like prince charming at first. You could be involved in a wonderful romance, only to be dumped a few months later after the Knight of Cups loses interest. You may be tired of work, money, and everything when you get this Knight card in reverse. This feeling will not last long, but you may need to let your mind stay away from those financial problems as this card appears. You may not have everything you want, but you already have almost got (or received) everything you need, just be consistent and take a short break.

Queen of Cups:

When the Queen of Cups turns up in a reading, it urges you to listen to your intuition. The Queen of Cups is all about the subconscious. This is where you will get the most out of using her wisely. Your subconscious feelings may not even reach your conscious level, so you react through the subconscious. This can lead to problems with reality and issues with self-awareness if not recognized.

She is ruled by emotions, art, and creativity. She can get lost in her own world though. She is prone to fantasy and lacks motivation at certain times. She is extremely sensitive. This makes her a very good friend because she listens with all her heart. She isn't a problem solver, but an emotional support system. The Queen of Cups would make a good therapist. You are lucky if you have her as a friend.

Stereotypically, she is one of the more beautiful queens. She has a feminine quality to her, which is usually done up with makeup and beautiful clothing. She will probably have a good fashion sense.

In the context of work, the Queen usually refers to a woman who will always help you. Queen reminds us to bring love and compassion into work even if we work in a factory full of machines instead of working with people. Things are probably better than you think in your career when this card appears. Keep thinking positive!

When the Queen of Cups appears in a spread about love, it usually implies a positive perspective on your relationship. If you are single, then this card is a good sign and it encourages you to go out and make friends, a very active romantic relationship is within your reach. When getting this card, you will be attracted to love. Keep your balance and your perspective. Even if you are excited about new love, it is important to make sure that other things continue to normally happen in your life.

Queen of Cups reversed:

Queen of Cups is still one of the most loving protagonists in the tarot card. Just like the upright card, the queen implies compassion, love and concern for ourselves and those around us. This card often depicts a real woman in our lives. However, as it is in the reverse, it may imply that this woman may be feeling hurt, being treated badly and may become unreliable. You should be carefully observed for those signs related to that case.

A woman at your workplace can cause you a bit of trouble. She was a very kind and understanding person, but now she has changed, at least her love may have turned to judgment and unreliability. The best way to deal with her is to consider her feelings, and do not give her any information which you do not want to share with anyone. If you are looking for a job, a woman will probably help you to get you a job at this point.

In general, your love life will be good when you get Queen of Cups reversed. This card reminds you to focus on the love aspect of your character. The real and deep love for another person also implies that this person is always in your mind. Do not lose patience, hurry or show irritability.

King of Cups:

Like his queen, the King of Cups is highly emotional, but his emotions are less transparent. He has learned to keep them under control even though there maybe a molten lava of emotional eruption inside him. Indeed, this king is the more emotional of the four kings of tarot. His emotions make him an excellent artist where he can tap into his creative juices. Anywhere you find artistic creation such as photography, painting, graphic design, you will find the King of Cups. The King of Cups refers to the balance between masculine and feminine power. He keeps all the positive qualities of both masculinity and femininity. He often implies a man in your life who is a very kind and loving person. You should know that you are supported by the Universe, both in a tangible and intangible way, when he appears.

In the context of work, King of Cups in the upright usually refers to a boss or a very nice colleague in your team. Do not hesitate to ask him to assist you if you are in need. If you are wondering how others feel about you at work when this King card appears, you can be assured that they appreciate and respect you and your work. Many things can be improved when this card appears.

With questions about love, when this King card appears, the news received will be very positive. If you are looking for love, this card implies someone who is very balanced and love will soon knock on your door. The King card is a good message about love.

King of Cups reversed:

The King of Cups reversed is prone to emotional outbursts, otherwise known as a drama king.

The King of Cups reversed is prone to drugs and drinking alcohol.

The King of Cups reversed may throw pity parties for himself and dwell constantly on the past while making himself the martyr.

The King of Cups is often aimed at someone who is preparing to risk everything, including finances, to pursue a dream. This is not wrong if that person has a stable plan and is willing to work to bring about results. However, if the dream of becoming wealthy comes from the gamble, then that is a serious problem. Watch out for these thoughts and make sure you protect yourself.

The Suit of Coins:

Ace of Coins:

All aces represent the potential in the suit that they are in. The Ace of Coins represents the potential to have money, to be in a physically appealing love affair, or to have very good health.

The Ace of Coins can be very grounded in practicality. A simple, no nonsense approach is sometimes best.

The Ace of Coins can predict good news of any kind coming your way such as an inheritance or a bonus check at work.

The appearance of this card is often a sign that your life will turn into a better direction in terms of money and prosperity, or it may be a sign that you will receive gifts or money, even the right to inherit from places you did not expect (of course, this does not mean that someone has to die to give you the right to inherit).

In terms of work, Ace of Coins implies that you will move to another position or take on new responsibilities. If you are wondering whether to leave your current job, this is a positive card that encourages you to do so. The choice of a new job position may also appear whether you are looking for it or not. In general, this is good new.

If you are having a relationship that both you and your lover have committed to the future, this is the time it will soon reach a new level. If you are still looking for love, it is the time to step out, meet people and look for promising new beginnings. You should get ready, think positive and enjoy the fun.

Ace of Coins reversed:

The Ace of Coins reversed may be a sign that you are quite worried about the money. We are all concerned about our financial situation but do not worry too much to lose the joy of living at the present time. You should be satisfied with what you have, do what you want and leave everything else for the Creator/Universe to lead.

through the process of work. You should always be friendly, step outside more and get along with people.

Two of Coins :

With all two's there is a duality that needs to be examined. It can even indicate that with all dualities, you will need to balance them to achieve harmony.

The Two of Coins can also indicate someone who is indecisive. He/she can't make up their mind.

The Two of Coins is about change. The change that will happen in your life is for the better, so embrace it.

As a signifier, the Two of Coins denotes someone who easily rolls back and forth with whatever life hands them.

They understand that sometimes you have to take risks in life in order to keep the momentum going.

In love the Two of Coins may warn that your partner or love interest is juggling two choice or two partners. They may also be undecided about what to do, so they continue to fluctuate back and forth between you and the other person. You may feel very emotionally uneasy about the current situation and don't know what to do.

You should pay attention to the results and make sure that you understand your financial situation. You may need to create a balance for everything, such as spending less or spending more to take care of your personal financial future. This is a good time to invest (wisely) instead of spending or speculating.

Two of Coins reversed:

The Two of Coins reversed may be a sign that you have too many things to keep balanced and can also be a reminder that you should take time to rest. A short break is still better than keep moving continuously without stopping.

Overall, this reversed card is a good card when it comes to the aspect of work, but it is also possible that the demands for you at work are becoming too overwhelming for you to meet. Do not carry the whole world on your shoulders, It is better to just do one or a few things at a time thoroughly and radically, quality is more important than quantity.

The meaning of the Two of Coins reversed not so different from the upright one. You are in a committed relationship, there may be many concerns that are overwhelming your mind and keep you away from the person you love. You need to make sure your partner knows how much you love, respect and care for him/her. If you are looking for love, do not fool yourself that you are ready for a serious relationship while you are not. If you fill your time constantly with work or other things that distract you, you will not have enough time for your future lover, so please consider.

Three of Coins :

The Three of Coins indicates a skilled worker. It suggests a construction worker or someone who works with their hands.

The Three of Coins in love suggests that you met at work or on a social media website. If you are asking about a love interest, the Three of Coins suggests that they are busy at work. They might be thinking about you, but work will take precedent. They could also already be in a relationship with someone else.

Love triangles can be indicated by the Three of Coins , Three of Cups, Three of Wands and especially the Three of Swords.

In terms of work/career, this card is a very good sign. The card tells you that in general, your effort is being appreciated and noticed.

That is a great feature for you to promote yourself. Similarly, if you are looking for a job, this card hints that you absolutely can expect the success in the near future.

The Three of Coins is a card of material development. This situation involves money, occupation, education, physicality, property or project that brings tangible results. You will be rewarded for working proficiently and using skills, knowledge, and talents.

You will be rewarded for working proficiently and using skills, knowledge, and talents. You can have a good start and be recognized as an expert in the field you pursue.

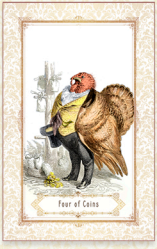

Three of Coins reversed:

Work is the most focused aspect of this reversed card. This is an important time to do your best instead of finding the simplest solutions. Once you do so, you will have many opportunities to achieve great success.

In terms of love, the Three of Coins reversed is a good sign. If you want to have a baby, this is a time when fertility is higher than normal. If you are still looking for love, this is a good time to meet people (especially through work); however, be mindful of not being too passive or lowering your standards. Remember, always hold your head high!

Your financial situation is (or will be) going well when getting this card in reverse. However, you should not expect that money will grow on the tree. Whether your financial situation is stable or not depends on how hard you have worked and tried.

Four of Coins :

In general, this card can be a sign that the querent is having concerns/worries about the money and/or getting involved in something that makes them feel insecure. The key point to be aware of in this case is that anxiety and fear do not bring you safety.

You also maybe very thrifty with your money and refuse to spend any penny. You reuse and pinch pennies whenever you can. You may even hoard items and never let anything go.

You keep every little memento and even think about keeping old shoe boxes so you can reuse them later.

You maybe working hard to get the financial success that you desire. When you get the Four of Coins in a reading know that success is yours. You have built a solid financial structure which is strong and grounded for success.

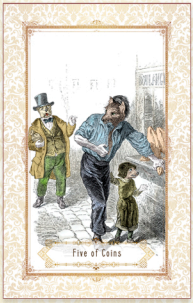

In love in can represent a controlling spouse. They may even view you as a possession or commodity and not want to share you with anyone else. You maybe viewed as the "trophy". They may need to "know" everything, but they do not reciprocate. They need to know where you are and what you are doing.

If you are not in a relationship and are asking about a potential relationship, you may keep insisting that they will be yours someday. You keep holding on to the idea of them. You maybe very structured in your thinking. The Four of Coins can indicate being a little obsessed with a person or an idea. You just can't seem to let it go.

Four of Coins Reversed:

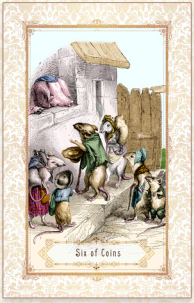

The Four of Coins reversed is when you finally let go. You may let go of blocking your heart in regard to a relationship and try and open up a little bit.

On a negative side of letting go, you could sell off stocks, bonds or commodities. You let go of the materialism that could possibly be keeping you in chains.

Five of Coins :

Economic downturns are indicated by the Five of Coins. The housing bubble burst or the great depression are good examples of someone experiencing a Five of Coins moment.
It can also represent being spiritually lost because of financial situations that take up all your time. You need to be financially secure before you can develop spiritual awareness.
The Five of Coins could indicate that you feel rejected by a love interest. This person probably looks down upon you, so they aren't a good match anyway.
If you are already in a relationship, the Five of Coins could indicate that you and your partner will make it through thick and thin. It might even strengthen your relationship.
You may experience a feeling of losing money. You should carefully consider what things, skills or circumstances you may have missed. If you need financial help, make a request. The current time is just momentary. You just need to make sure you are getting good and effective advice.
Five of Coins reversed:
In general, this reversed card is the message that the previously abandoned feeling in the upright card is passing. Your confidence is now gradually being recreated. You should believe in every reason that makes you feel more comfortable.
You may gradually leave the feeling of being stuck in work-related problems. New opportunities may suddenly appear within your reach. Let's go ahead with all your confidence and do not be hesitated. The dark period has stayed behind, so think positively and pursue what you want and need.
In terms of love, Five of Coins reversed implies that you are probably feeling something is holding you back for a few unclear reasons. You suddenly feel more open to the relationship. Although there is a possibility of getting hurt, you will find yourself miraculously be loved more. If both of you have made a commitment, your relationship may become more intimate and satisfied. The only problem that this card points to is the thought of "us against the world" need to stop.

Six of Coins :

The Six of Coins can have two meanings. You can either be the man getting the handout or the man giving the handout. If you are the man who is receiving know that it is okay to ask for help. Welfare isn't a bad thing if you need it. Just be aware of the lesson of the other man and spend your money wisely. Use your money to make more money. Perhaps you need to reevaluate how you are spending your money and living your life.
The second meaning of the Six of Coins can be from the view of the man giving the donations. It is okay to give away your wealth, especially if you have more than you need.

If you are in a long-term committed relationship, the Six of Coins predicts that your love will be extremely happy, comfortable, and fair. You should be satisfied with what you get from your lover, either in terms of physical or mental; at the same time, give him/her the best things fairly, so that this relationship is always in a stable position. If you are looking for someone who will engage with you for a lifetime, the appearance of this card is the message that you will meet the right person soon who is very positive, kind and generous. That upcoming relationship may be due to someone you know who introduced you.

Six of Coins reversed:

This card in reverse shows that you do not recognize the generosity that is available to you as well as your ability to give away to others. You should be aware that rejecting help/support is like "knocking your head against the wall". Such a greathearted person not just only gives away the value in terms of money. When the Six of Coins appears in reverse, you should be generous in your workplace, in terms of time, interest, and information. That will make your work more favorable for both you and the colleagues involved.

If you are looking for love, you need to be more open. You will shut down the door to meet the potential partner if you are too extremely independent. If your committed relationship does not seem to be going well, try to give more instead of just expecting to receive.

Seven of Coins :

This card usually implies profits from investments. "Investing" here can literally mean to open a bank account for interest or literally investing your time, effort and energy into a relationship. You will be reaping what you have struggled to sow. This card is generally a positive card.

Your job is likely to progress smoothly and you will get the rewards or achievements due to previous efforts. This achievement may come to you sooner or later. The financial situation seems to be quite positive and you will surely get more than before.

In terms of love, the Seven of Coins is a prediction that everything related to the person you love will go well. If you do not have a lover yet, you need to be open to other potential relationships. Do not let yourself fall into feelings of suspicion or fear. Everything will get better.

Seven of Coins reversed:

You will be directed to the fact that life is a full circle and what we do today will certainly bring about future results/consequences. When you are living generously in terms of time, energy or money at the moment; it is an investment in your own future. You should know how to give away what you have and be grateful for what you are given.

When you are living generously in terms of time, energy or money at the moment; it is an investment in your own future. You should know how to give away what you have and be grateful for what you are given.

It is likely that you will become more and more bored with your work. You should spend some time and effort to find out what is the reason for this feeling and let your mind be clear about things that can help change your current situation (or that change may start from you). You do not necessarily need to quit. Let's think carefully and be lenient about other issues.

In terms of love, you need to know that no relationship or nobody is perfect, including you, no matter how hard you try. If you are in the process of finding true love and fail constantly, maybe you are having unrealistic fantasies or idealizing excessively the standards of your future lover.

Eight of Coins :

The Eight of Coins is sometimes named the apprentice card because he is still learning and mastering his trade. The Eight of Coins can also be a card about internships that will lead to a higher paying job. The rewards can only be achieved through dedication and hard work.

The Eight of Coins is sometimes named the apprentice card because he is still learning and mastering his trade. The Eight of Coins can also be a card about internships that will lead to a higher paying job. The rewards can only be achieved through dedication and hard work.There are no other animals in this picture, but the mouse working diligently on his craft. The home is far away and a great deal of distance separates him from his home.

You maybe spending too much time working and neglecting your home and family.

If you are single and can't figure out why, maybe it is because you are spending too much time working to meet anyone new.

If you are currently in a relationship that the two parties have committed for a long time, then the amount of work that you or your lover is burdened with is likely to affect your relationship. You should always pay enough time and space for your relationship and not to engage in personal work, otherwise, everything will become a burden for you. If you are in search of love, this card often indicates that you are too focused on making a living to spend time, energy and interest in a new relationship. You should consider your priorities and see where you are investing your time and energy.

Eight of Coins Reversed:

The Eight of Coins reversed indicates that you are unfocused and perform sloppy work. You could be cutting corners that end up making more money for you in the short term, but end up with devastating consequences in the long term.

The work effort in the Eight of Coins falls to the wayside when this card is reversed. You are sloppy, undedicated and may even do illegal things to get ahead.

In love, the Eight of Coins reversed can come up for a person who is a commitment phobic.

Nine of Coins :

The Nine of Coins suggests that you are in the process of developing self-worth and self discipline. This will ensure that you will never lose your wealth. Balance the material with the spiritual and you will see the completion of the nines. Spiritual completion is grounded in material abundance.

The giraffe in the Nine of Coins knows that love comes within yourself and all around you. She understands the difference between object oriented love (commonly called lust) and true love for everything around her. She is in touch with the natural world. She is radiating from a place of love. This is the way she can attract people that will truly love her, for her.

The Nine of Coins suggests that you or someone you know is a woman that doesn't need a man to fulfill any sense of self. This card bodes well for retired women as well as divorced women who would rather keep their relationships out of their house.

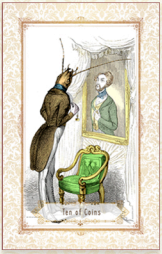

Maybe, you want the fruits of labor (money) without having to do put effort or work hard. You should take the time and effort to assess your financial situation and carry out plan/goals/methods for what you want. Money does not grow on trees.

Nine of Coins reversed:

The reversed Nine of Coins is generally a good sign, however, it also warns that you should at least focus on disciplining rather than allowing yourself to be excessively self-indulgent. Life has a lot of pleasures but you will also need to constantly work hard to maintain those things. Do not oversleep on the victory for too long.

If you are looking for a job, the Nine of Coins card will tell you that you need to make sure that you are disciplined and following the right method. Once you meet that requirement, an appropriate/suitable job will come quickly.

Ten of Coins :

You pass it on to others, so that they may have abundance too. This is the card of inheritance, family legacies, and marriages. You maybe the old man who is giving his house to his grown children and grandchild, or you could be the one receiving the inheritance.

Unlike the other family card, the Ten of Cups, the Ten of Coins is not a stage card. This is the real deal. This is the family that sticks together because that's the "right" thing to do. It doesn't speak of undying love, but undying devotion to the patronage and family lineage.

This is a good card to receive if you are asking about love.

It can indicate material success and material wealth. It's a solid card to get especially for people who believe in leaving a legacy for their children.

The Ten of Coins may indicate marrying for money and/or arranged marriages. Your spouse may have everything that you want. They maybe financially secure, have the right job, the right ethnicity, and come from the right socioeconomic world, but there maybe something lacking.

Ten of Coins Reversed:

The Ten of Coins Reversed can be about two ships passing in the night. You have everything you think you need: wealth, security, family, heritage, but you may not be happy. You and your spouse are so busy working separate jobs that you may rarely see each other.

This could end in divorce or a permanent separation.

He is hardworking. When they commit to their studies or job they do all the necessary research and planning for it. The Page of Coins can be very organized. You might see him spending long nights in the library studying.

The Page of Coins is a pensive person. He loves to think over decisions. They will not make a quick decision, but would rather weigh all the pros and cons.

He moves very slowly, but patiently. Everything has to be perfect, so he meticulously dots all the I's and crosses all the T's. He is a perfectionist and doesn't care how long it takes to get a project done. He will learn and practice until he gets things right. This page wants to be thorough. Unlike the Page of Wands, the Page of Coins finishes projects she starts.

If you are in a committed relationship, this card may be a sign that your relationship lacks a bit of romance. It is a call to you and your lover to take question quickly and discuss with each other. You need to be very honest about your feelings to create change and improve this relationship.

If you are alone and feel as if you do not have the opportunity to meet the right person, consider carefully what you are holding in your heart. You may still have feelings for your ex-lover and may need to let go of old memories before you can expect things to be better.

n terms of finance, the Page of Coins implies the rewards and achievements that you will receive by working well and diligently. However, this is not the time to invest riskily or do something unrealistic. On the contrary, it is time to give an honest assessment of the value of the skills and efforts you have spent. If you are not paid or get what you deserve, this may be the time to make a change. You should know how to invest wisely instead of wasting money.

In general, this card may imply that you either have to work harder to avoid your energy and mind being diverted to unfavorable things or allow yourself a little rest and escape from the daily tasks. You can spend a long vacation on weekends to restore the energy needed to get back to your daily routine efficiently if possible.

Knight of Coins :

He is hardworking. He may or may not have a lot of money, but he definitely works hard. He has the best work ethic of all the knights. Which means that when he develops into the King of Coins he will most likely have a lot of resources and money.

He is always on time and always does what he says he'll do. He is the most reliable of all the knights. Being on time is important to the Knight of Coins and part of his internal structure. He always thinks before he acts, so when he commits to something it's because he has really given it a lot of thought. You'll know it's a true commitment and that he is ready for.

The Knight of Coins in a reading means that you are working slowly on a project. It symbolizes being at the mid-way point. You are working to refine your style or method. It's why the Knight of Coins comes up for colleges and university studies. When you're in college you are half way finished with getting the knowledge ready for your next career move. The Knight of Coins can be about being in the mid- point of any type of situation.

In love, this knight is very particular about who he commits to. He is not frivolous in who he dates and is always looking for the most utilitarian package. He may not be the most romantic of knights (the Knight of Cups tends toward romance), but he is a stable and reliable partner who is thoughtful and always follows through.

When he does commit to a woman, he does so with the utmost dedication.

Knight of Coins Reversed:

When the Knight of Coins comes up reversed in a reading, you could be lazy, disorganized and have general malaise.

The Knight of Coins Reversed can also indicate over eating, drinking too much and lack of exercise. You could turn into a slob who eats away their problems and doesn't try to fix the inner you. You could end up being overweight and lack the discipline and drive to fix your weight problem.

Queen of Coins :

She has many confidants because she loves to take care of people. She is hard working. Everyone generally loves her because she is warm, loving and understanding.

She is the homemaker and the mother. She loves her home and it is also welcoming and lavishly decorated. She is warm, loving and nurturing. She loves to throw parties in her home because she loves to make people feel good.

She is the person you can go to with all your secrets because she won't tell. She will listen to you when you need to talk. . She is a good listener and can seem to remain unemotional at times. She is sympathetic, kind and caring. She helps you through your problems by listening and understanding.

Her home is usually clean, organized and beautifully decorated.

The Queen of Coins in love is a very devoted woman. She is earthy, sensual and very grounded. She will need a partner that is equally grounded and financially ambitious. She will love making you a special dinner from scratch and with lots of love. She is the queen who will take care of you when you need it.

The Queen of Coins is stable and is the Queen of Success. She knows that a successful woman is consistent and hardworking. Her garden and lush environment can stand for her abundance and success in the material world.

Queen of Coins reversed:

Usually, the Queen represents a woman who can play an important role in your life in some way. However, when appearing in reverse, this card will often tend to create motivational sources for life that we need to pay attention to, especially aspects related to family and the meaning of family to you.

In terms of work, you should try to remember the thing that makes you feel comfortable when working, even the smallest details. The only thing you can control or enjoy in your working environment is your attitude. If you cannot feel the interest in work directly, consider whether you can bring excitement to your colleagues around you or not. It may be a way to help you find satisfaction when you decide orientation associated with your work in the near future.

In terms of love, even in the reversed position, this Queen card still tends to be feminine. This card is a call to focus your attention on family life, whether you have a long-term relationship with someone or not, and thus you can significantly improve your love life.

King of Coins:

He loves structure and hard work. He is usually an established man who is dedicated to working hard. He loves the good life: luxury, sumptuous velvets, opulence, and quality. He probably drives an expensive car and dresses well.

The King of Coins type of man tends to be a very larger-than-life figure. He's also very persistent. He's the type of man that sits on the head of a board room. He doesn't take "no" as an answer. He's solid like the earth too, so once he sets his mind on something, he'll go after it with full force.

In love he is slow and steady. He builds relationships that have a solid foundation. He is very sensual and probably very good in bed.

He gets just as turned on when you are turned on. The King of Coins usually represents a married man. He is very faithful and committed. He may have a tendency to be jealous and possessive.

Now is time to make that decision. As advice, the King of Coins tells you to make that final decision, final assessment or finish a project to completion.

King of Coins Reversed:

The King of Coins reversed tends towards being greedy and rich. This king has not learned the secrets of true wealth yet. The Reversed King of Coins needs to learn that when you give, you receive.

As a lover or husband the Reversed King of Coins can be controlling and manipulative. He is all about me, me, me and his ego being super inflated. He can say and do cruel things, especially when he feels like his ego has been bruised. His partner will be a prize to be won. He strategically thinks about love, often to his own detriment.

He can be intimidating and can and will hurt other people to get what he wants. Puffery....Always thinking about money and finances.

This guy is vain in the sense that he wants nice things to the extreme.
